dissemination of culture across the globe Cultural Heritage in Mali in the Neoliberal Era Rosa De Jorio, 2016-06-30

Up to 2012 Mali was a poster child of African democracy despite multiple signs of growing dissatisfaction with the democratic experiment Then disaster struck bringing many of the nation's unresolved contradictions to international attention A military coup carved off the country's south A revolt by a coalition of Tuareg and extremist Islamist forces shook the north The events so violent and unexpected forced experts to reassess Mali's democratic institutions and the neoliberal economic reforms enacted in conjunction with the move toward democracy Rosa De Jorio's detailed study of cultural heritage and its transformations provides a key to understanding the impasse that confronts Malian democracy As she shows postcolonial Mali privileged its cultural heritage to display itself on the regional and international scene The neoliberal reforms both intensified and altered this trend Profiling heritage sites ranging from statues of colonial leaders to women's museums to historic Timbuktu De Jorio portrays how various actors have deployed and contested notions of heritage These actors include not just Malian administrators and politicians but UNESCO and non state NGOs She also delves into the intricacies of heritage politics from the perspective of Malian actors and groups as producers and receivers but always highly informed and critically engaged of international national and local cultural initiatives DK Eyewitness Travel Guide

The Public Image Of Chemistry Joachim Schummer, Bernadette Bensaude-vincent, Brigitte Van Tiggelen, 2007-10-17 Popular associations with chemistry range from poisons hazards chemical warfare and environmental pollution to alchemical pseudoscience sorcery and mad scientists which gravely affect the public image of science in general While chemists have merely complained about their public image social and cultural studies of science have largely avoided anything related to chemistry This book provides for the first time an in depth understanding of the cultural and historical contexts in which the public image of chemistry has emerged It argues that this image has been shaped through recurring and unlucky interactions between chemists in popularizing their discipline and nonchemists in expressing their expectations and fears of science Written by leading scholars from the humanities social sciences and chemistry in North America Europe and Australia this volume explores a blind spot in the science society relationship and calls for a constructive dialog between scientists and their public
