Europe's First Farmers:

Europe's First Farmers T. Douglas Price, 2000-09-14 Essays by leading specialists on a central issue of European history the transition to farming Europe's First Farmers T. Douglas Price, 2000-09-14 Plants and animals originally domesticated in the Near East arrived in Europe between 7000 and 4000 BC Was the new technology introduced by migrants or was it an inside job How were the new species adapted to European conditions What were the immediate and long term consequences of the transition from hunting and gathering to farming These central questions in the prehistory of Europe are discussed here by leading specialists drawing on the latest scholarship in fields as diverse as genetics and Indo-European linguistics The First Farmers of Europe Stephen Shennan, 2018-05-03 Knowledge of the origin and spread of farming has been revolutionised in recent years by the application of new scientific techniques especially the analysis of ancient DNA from human genomes In this book Stephen Shennan presents the latest research on the spread of farming by archaeologists geneticists and other archaeological scientists He shows that it resulted from a population expansion from present day Turkey Using ideas from the disciplines of human behavioural ecology and cultural evolution he explains how this process took place The expansion was not the result of population pressure but of the opportunities for increased fertility by colonising new regions that farming offered The knowledge and resources for the farming niche were passed on from parents to their children However Shennan demonstrates that the demographic patterns associated with the spread of farming resulted in population booms and busts not continuous expansion The First Farmers of Europe Stephen Shennan, 2018-05-03 The book shows how the spread of farming across Europe was the result a population expansion from present day Turkey Neolithic Farming in Central Europe Amy Bogaard, 2004-09-16 Neolithic Farming in Central Europe examines the nature of the earliest crop cultivation a subject that illuminates the lives of Neolithic farming families and the day to day reality of the transition from hunting and gathering to farming Debate surrounding the nature of crop husbandry in Neolithic central Europe has focussed on the permanence of cultivation its intensity and its seasonality variables that carry different implications for Neolithic society Amy Bogaard reviews the archaeological evidence for four major competing models of Neolithic crop husbandry shifting cultivation extensive plough cultivation floodplain cultivation and intensive garden cultivation and evaluates charred crop and weed assemblages Her conclusions identify the most appropriate model of cultivation and highlight the consequences of these agricultural practices for our understanding of Neolithic societies in central Europe Prehistoric Europe Andrew Jones, 2008-11-10 Prehistoric Europe Theory and Practice provides a comprehensive introduction to the range of critical contemporary thinking in the study of European prehistory Presents essays by some of the most dynamic researchers and leading European scholars in the field today Ranges from the Neolithic period to the early stages of the Iron Age and from Ireland and Scandinavia to the Urals and the Iberian Peninsula Ancient DNA and the European Neolithic Alasdair Whittle, Joshua Pollard, Susan Greaney, 2023-01-24 The current paradigm changing ancient DNA revolution is offering unparalleled insights into central problems within archaeology relating to the movement of populations and individuals patterns of descent relationships and aspects of identity at many scales and of many different kinds The impact of recent ancient DNA results can be seen particularly clearly in studies of the European Neolithic the subject of contributions presented in this volume We now have new evidence for the movement and mixture of people at the start of the Neolithic as farming spread from the east and at its end when the first metals as well as novel styles of pottery and burial practices arrived in the Chalcolithic In addition there has been a wealth of new data to inform complex questions of identities and relationships The terms of archaeological debate for this period have been permanently altered leaving us with many issues This volume stems from the online day conference of the Neolithic Studies Group held in November 2021 which aimed to bring geneticists and archaeologists together in the same forum and to enable critical but constructive inter disciplinary debate about key themes arising from the application of advanced ancient DNA analysis to the study of the European Neolithic The resulting papers gathered here are by both geneticists and archaeologists Individually they form a series of significant up to date period and regional syntheses of various manifestations of the Neolithic across the Near East and Europe including particularly Britain and Ireland Together they offer wide ranging reflections on the progress of ancient DNA studies and on their future reach and character

The Oxford Handbook of Neolithic Europe Chris Fowler, Jan Harding, Daniela Hofmann, 2015-03-26 The Neolithic a period in which the first sedentary agrarian communities were established across much of Europe has been a key topic of archaeological research for over a century However the variety of evidence across Europe the range of languages in which research is carried out and the way research traditions in different countries have developed makes it very difficult for both students and specialists to gain an overview of continent wide trends The Oxford Handbook of Neolithic Europe provides the first comprehensive geographically extensive thematic overview of the European Neolithic from Iberia to Russia and from Norway to Malta offering both a general introduction and a clear exploration of key issues and current debates surrounding evidence and interpretation Chapters written by leading experts in the field examine topics such as the movement of plants animals ideas and people including recent trends in the application of genetics and isotope analyses cultural change from the first appearance of farming to the first metal artefacts domestic architecture subsistence material culture monuments and burial and other treatments of the dead In doing so the volume also considers the history of research and sets out agendas and themes for future work in the field

The Neolithic of Europe Penny Bickle, Daniela Hofmann, Joshua Pollard, 2017-05-31 The Neolithic of Europe comprises eighteen specially commissioned papers on prehistoric archaeology written by leading international scholars The coverage is broad ranging geographically from southeast Europe to Britain and Ireland and chronologically from the Neolithic to the Iron Age but with a decided focus on the former Several papers discuss new scientific approaches to key questions in Neolithic research while others offer interpretive accounts of aspects of the archaeological record Thematically the main foci are on Neolithisation the archaeology of Neolithic daily life settlements and subsistence as well as monuments and aspects of world view A number of contributions highlight the recent impact of techniques such as isotopic analysis and statistically modeled radiocarbon dates on our understanding of mobility diet lifestyles events and historical processes The volume is presented to celebrate the enormous impact that Alasdair Whittle has had on the study of prehistory especially the European and British Neolithic and his rich career in archaeology Times of Neolithic Transition along the Western Mediterranean Oreto García-Puchol, Domingo C. Salazar-García, 2017-07-01 The study of the Neolithic transition constitutes a major theme in prehistoric research The process of economic change from foraging to farming involved one of the main transformations in human behavior patterns This volume focuses on investigating the neolithization process at the periphery of one of the main routes in the expansion of the Neolithic in Europe the Western Mediterranean region Recent advances in radiocarbon dating mathematical and computational models archaeometric analysis and biomolecular techniques together with new archaeological discoveries provide novel insights into this topic This volume is organized into five sections new discoveries and new ideas about the Mediterranean Neolithic reconstructing times and modeling processes landscape interaction farming and herding dietary subsistence of early farming communities human dispersal mechanisms and cultural transmission This volume will also provide new empirical data to help readers assess different theoretical frameworks and narratives which underlie the models proposed to explain the expansion of farming from the Middle East into Europe Europe Before Rome T. Douglas Price, 2013-02-28 Europe before Rome uses the extraordinary archaeology of prehistoric Europe to explore questions about the origins and evolution of human society

Skeletal Variation and Adaptation in Europeans Christopher B. Ruff, 2018-03-27 A comprehensive analysis of changes in body form and skeletal robusticity from the Terminal Pleistocene through the Holocene leading to the modern European human phenotype Skeletal Variation and Adaptation in Europeans Upper Paleolithic to the Twentieth Century brings together for the first time the results of an unprecedented large scale investigation of European skeletal remains The study was conducted over ten years by an international research team and includes more than 2 000 skeletons spanning most of the European continent over the past 30 000 years from the Early Upper Paleolithic to the 20th century This time span includes environmental transitions from foraging to food production small scale to large scale urban settlements increasing social stratification and mechanization of labor and climatic changes Alterations in body form and behavior in response to these transitions are reconstructed through osteometric and biomechanical analyses Divided into four sections the book includes an introduction to the project and comprehensive descriptions of the methods used general continent wide syntheses of major trends in body size shape and skeletal robusticity detailed regional analyses and a summary of results It also offers a full data set on an external website Brings together data from an unprecedented large scale study of human skeletal and anatomical variations Includes appendix of specific information from each research site Synthesizes data from changes in settlement patterns burial practices demography and subsistence human impact on the Mesolithic environment and the neolithisation process Some papers also deal with more methodological aspects of carbon 14 dating e g calculation of various reservoir effects the use of cumulative calibrated probability distributions and related techniques e g stable isotope analysis for palaeodiet reconstruction Moving on in Neolithic Studies Jim Leary, Thomas Kador, 2016-02-29 Mobility is a fundamental facet of being human and should be central to archaeology Yet mobility itself and the role it plays in the production of social life is rarely considered as a subject in its own right This is particularly so with discussions of the Neolithic people where mobility is often framed as being somewhere between a sedentary existence and nomadic movements This latest collection of papers from the Neolithic Studies Group seminars examines the importance and complexities of movement and mobility whether on land or water in the Neolithic period It uses movement in its widest sense ranging from everyday mobilities the routines and rhythms of daily life to proscribed mobility such as movement in and around monuments and occasional and large scale movements and migrations around the continent and across seas Papers are roughly grouped and focus on mobility and the landscape monuments and mobility travelling by water and materials and mobility Through these themes the volume considers the movement of people ideas animals objects and information and uses a wide range of archaeological evidence from isotope analysis artefact studies lithic scatters and assemblage diversity In Search of the Broad Spectrum Revolution in Paleolithic Southwest Europe Emily Lena Jones, 2015-10-07 The people who inhabited Southwest Europe from 30 000 to 13 000 years ago are often portrayed as big game hunters and indeed in some locations Cantabrian Spain the Pyrenees the Dordogne the archaeological record supports this interpretation But in other places notably Mediterranean Iberia the inhabitants focused their hunting efforts on smaller game such as rabbits fish and birds Were they less effective hunters Were these environments depleted of red deer and other large game Or is this evidence of Paleolithic people s adaptability This volume explores these questions along the way delving into the history of the bigger equals better assumption optimal foraging theory and niche construction theory and patterns of environmental and subsistence change across the Pleistocene Holocene transition The Origins and Spread of Domestic Plants in Southwest Asia and Europe Sue Colledge, James Conolly, 2016-06-16 Leading scholars demonstrate the importance of archaeobotanical evidence in the understanding of the spread of agriculture in southwest Asia and Europe Geography Is Destiny Ian Morris, 2022-06-07 In the wake of Brexit Ian Morris chronicles the ten thousand year history of Britain s relationship to Europe as it has changed in the context of a globalizing world When Britain voted to leave the European Union in 2016 the 48 percent who wanted to stay and the 52 percent who wanted to go each accused the other of stupidity fraud and treason In reality the Brexit debate merely reran a script written ten thousand years earlier when the rising seas physically separated the British Isles from the European continent Ever since geography has been destiny yet it is humans who get to decide what that destiny means Ian Morris the critically acclaimed author of Why the West Rules for Now describes how technology and organization have steadily enlarged Britain's arena and how its people have tried to turn this to their advantage. For the first seventy-five hundred years the British were never more than bit players at the western edge of a European stage struggling to find a role among bigger, richer and more sophisticated continental rivals. By 1500 CE, however, new kinds of ships and governments had turned the European stage into an Atlantic one with the English Channel now functioning as a barrier. England transformed the British Isles into a United Kingdom that created a worldwide empire. Since 1900, thanks to rapid globalization, Britain has been overshadowed by American, European and increasingly Chinese actors. In trying to find its place in a global economy, Britain has been looking in all the wrong places. The ten thousand year story bracingly chronicled by Geography Is Destiny shows that the great question for the current century is not what to do about Brussels, it's what to do about Beijing.

Landscapes under Pressure Ludomir R. Lozny, 2006-03-27. This book investigates the newly emerging interest to investigate and preserve cultural landscapes. It presents the historic archaeological, ethnographic and environmental traditions of cultural landscape study and the attempts to reconstruct and analyze the complex processes of cultural changes. It points to the benefits of interdisciplinary cooperation which should involve an ecological approach with historical ecology, applied archaeology and environmental planning.
