David Lassman

Evacuation From Dunkirk Operation Dynamo 26 May 4 June 1940:

The Evacuation from Dunkirk W. J. R. Gardner, 2000 Dunkirk was no victory but it did preserve the basis of an army that was to carry Britain and later the Allies through the hard years ahead This book presents the Navy's own history of the evacuation

The Dunkirk Evacuation in 100 Objects Martin Mace, 2017-09-30 At 18 57 hours on Sunday 26 May 1940 the Admiralty issued the directive which instigated the start of Operation Dynamo This was the order to rescue the British Expeditionary Force from the French port of Dunkirk and the beaches surrounding it The Admiralty believed that it would only be able to rescue 45 000 men over the course of the following two days Between 26 May and 4 June 1940 however when Dynamo officially ended an armada of ships big and small naval and civilian achieved what had been considered impossible In fact in this period a total of 338 682 men had been disembarked at British ports Such a figure has exceeded the expectations of most Little wonder therefore that an editorial in The New York Times at the beginning of June declared So long as the English tongue survives the word Dunkirk will be spoken with reverence Through 100 objects from the wreck of a ship through to a dug up rifle and individual photographs to large memorials all of which represent a moving snapshot of the past the author sets out to tell the story of what came to be known as The Miracle of Dunkirk The full colour photographs of each 100 items are accompanied by detailed explanations of the object and the people and events which make them so special or relevant

Air Power and the Evacuation of Dunkirk Harry Raffal, 2021-07-15 The evacuation of Dunkirk has been immortalised in books prints and films narrated as a story of an outnumbered inexperienced RAF defeating the battle hardened Luftwaffe and protecting the evacuation This book revives the historiography by analysing the air operations during the evacuation Raffal draws from German and English sources many for the first time in the context of Operation DYNAMO to argue that both sides suffered a defeat over Dunkirk This work examines the resources and tactics of both sides during DYNAMO and challenges the traditional view that the Luftwaffe held the advantage The success that the Luftwaffe achieved during DYNAMO including halting daylight evacuations on 1 June is evaluated and the supporting role of RAF Bomber and Coastal Command is explored in detail for the first time Concluding that the RAF was not responsible for the Luftwaffe's failure to prevent the evacuation Raffal demonstrates that the reasons lay elsewhere

Dunkirk Operation Dynamo: 26th May - 4th June 1940 An Epic of Gallantry M. J. Pearce, 2020-04-11 The successful evacuation of the British Expeditionary Force from Belgium and northern France through the port of Dunkirk and across adjacent beaches is rightly regarded as one of the most significant episodes in the nation's long history although Winston Churchill sagely cautioned in Parliament on 4th June that the country must be careful not to assign to this deliverance the attributes of a victory Wars are not won by evacuations Nevertheless the Dunkirk evacuation Operation Dynamo was a victory and like many others before it it was a victory of sea power The Royal Navy achieved what it set out to do despite grievous losses in the teeth of determined opposition It denied an aggressive and ruthless continental power a potentially war winning total victory that could have changed the direction of civilization for generations to come The loss of the main British field army would have enfeebled the nation militarily and psychologically prompting political upheaval potentially resulting in a negotiated peace with Nazi Germany on unfavourable terms dictated by Adolf Hitler The undeniable success of the evacuation was certainly a crucial naval and military achievement but its positive effect on the nation's morale was just as important instilling confidence in the eventual outcome of the war whatever the immediate future might hold and creating optimism in the face of adversity that added the Dunkirk spirit to the English language This edition of Dunkirk Operation Dynamo 26th May 4th June 1940 An Epic of Gallantry publishes the now declassified Battle Summary No 41 a document once classified as Restricted and produced in small numbers only for official government purposes This Summary The Evacuation from Dunkirk lodged in the archive at Britannia Royal Naval College Dartmouth is one of the very few surviving copies in existence and records events in minute detail being written soon after the evacuation using the words of the naval officers involved This makes it a unique record and a primary source for the history of Operation Dynamo from mid May 1940 until its conclusion on 4th June The original document has been supplemented in this title by a Foreword written by Admiral Sir James Burnell Nugent formerly the Royal Navy's Commander in Chief Fleet whose father commanded one of the destroyers sunk off Dunkirk when rescuing troops In addition there is a modern historical introduction and commentary putting the evacuation into context and this edition is enhanced by the inclusion of a large number of previously unpublished photographs of the beaches town and harbour of Dunkirk taken immediately after the conclusion of the operation together with others illustrating many of the ships that took part The Evacuation from Dunkirk of the British Expeditionary Force and French Troops Great Britain. Admiralty. Naval Staff. Training and Staff Duties Division (Historical Section), 1948

A Photographic History of Amphibious Warfare 1939-1945 Simon Forty, Jonathan Forty, 2023-04-06 contains a plethora of after action reports diagrams and text which makes the work a thorough and engaging study of amphibious landings during the war WWII History Magazine Amphibious operations have always been an important element of warfare but they reached their climax during the Second World War when they were carried out on a large scale in every theater of the conflict That is why this wide ranging highly illustrated history of amphibious warfare 1939 1945 by Simon and Jonathan Forty is of such value Their book gives graphic accounts of the main amphibious assaults launched by the major combatants in particular the British American German and Japanese not just large scale landings like those in North Africa

Normandy the Philippines and Okinawa but also raids such as Dieppe and St Nazaire and evacuations like Dunkirk and Kerch. The rapid development of amphibious tactics and equipment is an essential element of the story as are the vital roles played by the navies air forces armies and special forces in each complex combined operation. There is also a section on amphibious operations that were planned but didn't happen such as the German invasion of Britain and the Italian and German operation against Malta.

From Soldier to Storyteller Kathleen Broome Williams, Hal M. Friedman, 2024-10-09 Many of the best known and most popular children's stories of the 20th and early 21st century were written by veterans of World War I and World War II. These include works by such writers as A. A. Milne, C. S. Lewis, Roald Dahl, Ian Fleming, and J. R. R. Tolkien among others. Although they had experienced war, most of the veterans did not overtly write about it. The seeming paradox of warriors who went through searing combat and then wrote books for children has not been addressed collectively before now. The essays in this book explore what motivated these veterans to write for children, what they wrote, and how their writing was influenced by the wars they lived through. It examines how their combat experience can be traced in their writing, however subtly, whether it was stories about a bear and his piglet companion, a World War I flying ace, or a flying car. Their reactions to war as reflected in their writing yield important lessons about the complicated legacy of the 20th century's two great conflicts and their long-lasting impact through children on society at large.

One Crew: The RNLI's Official 200-Year History Helen Doe, 2024-02-15 This book takes a fresh look at the creation of the Institution and its early founders and examines how it has responded over 200 years.

The Development of British Tactical Air Power, 1940-1943 Matthew Powell, 2016-09-10 This book explores the development of tactical air power in Britain between 1940 and 1943 through a study of the Royal Air Force's Army Co-operation Command. It charts the work done by the Command during its existence and highlights the arguments between the RAF and Army on this contentious issue in Britain. Much is known about the RAF both in the years preceding and during the Second World War, particularly the exploits of Fighter Bomber and Coastal Commands, yet the existence of the RAF's Army Co-operation Command is little known. Through extensive archival research, Matthew Powell maps the creation and work of the RAF's Army Co-operation Command through an analysis of tactical air power developments during the First World War and inter-war periods, highlighting the debates and arguments that took place between the Air Ministry and the War Office.

Friend or Foe Paul Kemp, 1993-09-14 During the Second World War there were over 100 instances of naval engagements between ships submarines and aircraft of the same side In the past there has often been a reluctance by the authorities to admit to these losses but with operational records now available it is possible for historians to explain how a good number of ships and submarines were attacked damaged or sunk by the forces of their own side

50 Div In Normandy: L-Commander Ethan R. Williams, 2014-08-15 In late 1943 the British army ordered the veteran 7th Armored 51st Highland and 50th Northumbrian Divisions to return to Great Britain to provide combat experienced troops for the invasion of northwest Europe On D Day the 50th Division achieved nearly all of its objectives By mid June however the 50th held positions only a few miles beyond its final D Day positions The apparent failures of the veteran divisions in later operations led many senior leaders to believe that these divisions had become a liability This thesis will evaluate the performance of the 50th Division in Normandy by first examining the period before the invasion to determine the 50th's readiness for war British army doctrine and weapons The 50th's prior combat experiences and pre invasion training will be analyzed to determine the effect that prior combat had on the division Finally this thesis will evaluate the performance of the 50th Division in specific combat engagements in Normandy

A Hard Fought Ship John A Rodgaard, 2024-06-30 Here is the exhaustive and exhilarating story of HMS Venomous one of sixty seven V W destroyers built at the end of the Great War that were to play a key role in the struggle to keep the sea lanes open in the Atlantic Home Waters and the Mediterranean during the following war Her story was perhaps the most memorable of all her class When war broke out she was to find herself in the front line as the German blitzkrieg swept across Europe in 1940 and the V Ws made high speed dashes across the Channel to bring troops and civilians back from Calais Boulogne and Dunkirk and prepared for the expected invasion Later that year she and her sister ships escorted the Atlantic convoys which supplied our Russian allies with the weapons to halt the German advance She returned to the Mediterranean and took part in Operation Pedestal to save Malta and as the allies prepared for the landings in North Africa she was ordered to escort the destroyer depot ship HMS Hecla to the invasion beaches When Hecla was torpedoed off the coast off Morocco Venomous fought the attacking U boat and rescued 500 survivors She escorted convoys along the coast of North Africa including the first through convoy from Gibraltar to Alexandria and she joined the invasion force to Sicily during Operation Husky In October 1943 she returned to Britain for a major refit at Falmouth when she was converted to an air target ship for training Barracuda torpedo bombers based at Douglas Isle of Man and then after being transferred to the east coast she was nearly lost in a hurricane before being sent to Kristiansand to accept the surrender of German naval forces Venomous and her sister ships were all scrapped after the War but her extraordinary career during which she fought without cessation is brought to life in this rousing and beautifully told ship biography a fitting memorial to the V Ws and the men who served in them I would rate this as being in the same class as The Cruel Sea for a picture of small ship life in World War Two The Naval Review A portrayal of life on a wartime destroyer with a depth and insight that is possible unequalled by any previously published work Warship Annual This book is outstanding for its detailed insight into the life on not just a single destroyer but by extension life at sea aboard and Royal Navy destroyer The Northern Mariner A Hard Fought Ship is a vivid portrait of a fighting vessel and the men who operated her Warships International Fleet Review Highly recommended to both naval historians and the general public Mariner's Mirror It is an exemplary ship biography where a detailed narrative of the destroyer's exploits are brought to life by a wealth of first hand accounts Navy News This book is a detailed and thrilling account of the life of a typical V W class destroyer Sea Breezes
