Evening With Oaksey:

The Spectator, 2005      The Primitive Methodist Magazine, 1843      Time Remembered; the Story of a Fight Bertha Solomon, 1968 Autobiography of the lawyer and MP credited with getting the Married Women's Disability Bill passed 1953

Four Years in British Columbia and Vancouver Island Richard Charles Mayne, 1862      A Christian Peace Experiment Ian M. Randall, 2018-03-14 This book examines part of the development of the Bruderhof community which emerged in Germany in 1920. Community members sought to model their life on the New Testament. This included sharing goods. The community became part of the Hutterite movement with its origins in sixteenth century Anabaptism. After the rise to power of the Nazi regime the Bruderhof became a target and the community was forcibly dissolved. Members who escaped from Germany and travelled to England were welcomed as refugees from persecution and a community was established in the Cotswolds. In the period 1933 to 1942 when the Bruderhof's witness was advancing in Britain its members were in touch with many individuals and movements. This book covers the Bruderhof's connections with among others the Fellowship of Reconciliation, Dietrich Bonhoeffer, the Peace Pledge Union, the social work of Muriel and Doris Lester in East London, Jewish refugee groups and artistic pioneers like Eric Gill. As significant numbers of British people joined the Bruderhof its farming, publishing and arts and crafts activities extended considerably. But with the outbreak of the Second World War German members came to be regarded with suspicion and British members became unpopular locally because they were pacifists. Although the Bruderhof was defended in Parliament notably by Lady Astor it seemed that German members would be interned as enemy aliens. The consequence was that by 1942 over 300 community members had left England. With Mennonite assistance they began to forge a new life in South America. This book traces a remarkable Christian peace experiment being undertaken in a time of great political upheaval.

An Endless Song Lilian Harry, 2015-11-19 Previously published in paperback under the name Donna Baker Rowenna Mellor's life in the small Cumbrian mill village of Burneside has already known hardship. She lost her mother young but friends and the bond with her beloved brother kept her going. Now in the spring of 1885 he too has been snatched away from her. Rowenna knows she must now devote to caring for her father and even falling in love cannot be a free choice for her. But a chance for salvation comes from an unexpected direction. To grasp the opportunity Rowenna must risk everything: her good name, her liberty and her heart and defy the restrictions of her narrow life. Rowenna realises that starting a new life far away under the wide open skies of Canada will bring her freedom but at what price. And will those she loves and those she fears find a way of following her there.
