Cradle to Grave: Life-Course Change in Modern Sweden Jan O. Jonsson, Colin Mills, 2021-04-14 The empirical study of individuals life course is one of the most promising areas of research within sociology today Increased availability of large scale longitudinal data and improved statistical methods have made it possible to address theoretically relevant questions about events such as entrance into the labour market job mobility divorce and death This book consists of studies capturing the life course from the cradle to the grave The research questions include long term consequences of childhood conditions family formation and school careers work and parental leave gender discrimination in job promotion divorce and occupational career persistence in poverty and the intriguing question of why the highly educated tend to survive everyone else The studies shed light on the relation between family and work on gender inequality social class differences welfare state redistribution and labour market processes They do this in a particular context namely Sweden in the post war period that is during the decades that formed one of the most advanced welfare states in modern history One chapter provides a descriptive account of institutional and life course change in Sweden during that period Most authors use the Swedish level of living surveys a unique data set providing ample opportunity to study social processes in a longitudinal perspective The book will therefore be of relevance to those with interests in the Swedish welfare state as well as those with theoretical and research interests in the reproduction of inequality

Internal Migration as a Life-Course Trajectory Aude

Bernard, 2022-06-20 This book responds to growing calls to conceptualise and analyse internal migration as a trajectory that unfolds over the life course of individuals rather than a series of discrete events It combines macro and micro modes of analysis into a cohort framework to explore how individuals transition from one migration to the next The book presents new methodological developments in longitudinal analysis and applies them to internal migration in 27 European countries It demonstrates that the traditional dichotomy between migrants and non migrants conceals a wide range of migration behaviour and heterogeneity among repeat migrants It also reveals a continuity of migration behaviour being exposed to the challenges and benefits of migration early in life predisposes individuals toward migration in adulthood By adopting a cohort approach to migration coupled with state of the art methods and novel concepts this book provides new insights into internal migration for graduate students academics and policymakers interested in understanding migration behaviour in Europe and beyond

Family and the Female Life Course George Alter, 1988 The tension between women's workplace opportunity and family obligation is not exclusively a phenomenon of the 1980s as George Alter makes abundantly clear in this study His close investigation of women's lives in a nineteenth century European industrial city advances our knowledge in several areas of social history historical demography and life course studies It is the first monograph to apply event history analysis to the study of family history In doing so it moves beyond the static categories of traditional household studies to a dynamic view of the influence of the family on the life course decisions of individuals In contrast to most previous historical studies of the family this work focuses on the dynamic aspects of life course transitions employment marriage household formation childbearing rather than the structure of households In doing so attention is shifted from the household as a decision making unit to the role of family obligations and resources in the decisions of individuals Thus the family is viewed from the inside out through its effects on individual actors Alter's work adds new insights to our understanding of the impact of industrialization on family structure and functioning about women's work and labor force attachment and about the ways in which a life course perspective can help to resolve controversies in the approach to family and household dynamics His rich interpretations not only help to reconstruct the past but place some current social issues into historical perspective illegitimacy nuclear family patterns and women's dual family work roles among others

Methods of Life Course Research Janet Z. Giele, Glen H.

Elder,1998-03-10 What are the most effective methods for doing life course research In this volume the field s founders and leaders answer this question giving readers tips on the art and method of the appropriate research design the collection of life history data and the search for meaningful patterns to be found in the results Social Dynamics of the Life Course

Walter R. Heinz,Victor W. Marshall, In the last two decades research on the life course has successfully combined and integrated different and rather isolated fields of social concerns such as the labor market family solidarity education employment retirement and social policy It has also developed a special focus on crucial problems of sociological research which includes the understanding of micromacro phenomena the dynamics of social change and international comparisons Contributors to this volume take an international comparative approach in applying the life course theoretical framework to issues of work and career Life course research focuses on the relationship between institutions and individuals across the life span and illuminates the impact of modernization on the shaping of biographies Industrial service societies are characterized by historically new contingencies of living arrangements and biographies These contingencies differ according to the extent to which life course patterns are regulated by social institutions In the continental European context institutional frameworks continue to define the timing and sequencing of transitions across the life course In less regulated market societies like the United States and Great Britain biographies and living arrangements are shaped more by the interaction of markets social networks and individual decisions In active welfare states institutional resources and rules continue to mediate the effects of social change on the life course What the editors and contributors to this fine compendium anticipate is a change on the cultural level toward more equality This trend supports young people and women in particular in their expectations concerning an egalitarian relationship This expectation is not taken for granted from the point of view of the male partner but has to be negotiated in decisionmaking processes as an issue that concerns the couple as a unit Thus the way in which people interact is profoundly impacted by the values and goals of equity demands Walter R Heinz is professor of sociology and social psychology and director Graduate School of Social Sciences University of Bremen Victor W Marshall is professor of sociology and director of the Institute on Aging University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill Carolina Alcohol, Age, Generation and the Life Course
