Mortality and Causes of Death in 20th-Century Ukraine France Meslé, Jacques Vallin, 2012-01-07 The Ukraine faced two very different kinds of health crises during the twentieth century First in the 1930s and 1940s famine war and political upheaval caused massive population losses Previous evaluations of overall losses have given an idea of the scale of these catastrophes but do not distinguish between crisis mortality birth shortfall and loss through emigration Based on a painstaking work of reconstitution this study is the first to provide a detailed estimation of the hecatomb in terms of number of deaths and life expectancy The famine of 1933 was alone responsible for the deaths of 2 6 million Ukrainians and reduced male and female life expectancies to 7 and 11 years respectively Once the crises of the 1930s and 1940s were over the earlier trend in health resumed and mortality declined steadily until the 1960s At this point however a new type of crisis appeared that caused a sustained reversal in the existing trends Life expectancy for women stopped increasing altogether while that for men began a relentless year on year regression Notwithstanding the confusing picture created by the fluctuations of the 1980s and 1990s the long term trend is to further deterioration To understand the factors involved this study analyses in detail the combined effects of different causes of death at different ages

Archaeological Theory in Europe Ian Hodder, 2014-10-30 The 1980s witnessed exciting developments in theoretical writing in Western archaeology Where previous decades were dominated by the Anglo American perspective or New Archaeology the recent years showed the European debate grow in confidence and vitality This book published in 1991 captures this spirit of debate as contributors from a wide cross section of countries evaluate the development of the distinctly national and European characteristics of archaeology and assess future directions Contributors consider an extensive range of ideologies and viewpoints stressing the fundamentally historical emphasis and social construction of European archaeology The development of archaeological theory is traced with specific emphasis on factors which differ from country to country Ultimately it argues that the most active response to archaeology is to celebrate theory within a constantly critical mode A great insight into the development of theory
