the domestic neoliberal policies of government and the political capacity of developing states Dictating Development argues that economic growth is equally influenced positively and negatively by colonial powers Jonathan Krieckhaus examines both historic colonial influences on human capital and state structures as well as contemporary ones war market access and foreign aid Based on an in depth study of the regionally diverse nations of Mozambique Korea and Brazil and a statistical analysis of growth in ninety one countries from 1960 to 2000 Krieckhaus effectively demonstrates that most seemingly domestic political variables are in fact the byproduct of relationships with colonial powers While not denying the role of neoliberalism as an important factor in development Dictating Development reveals the roots of these policies how colonialism influences the very nature of government and societal productivity
