Sato,Akihide Ryo,2017-07-06 Infectious diseases are associated with approximately 20% of global mortality with viral diseases causing about one third of these deaths Besides newly emerging and re emerging viral infections will continue to pose a threat to human survival globally In this case scientific advances have greatly been increased to defend against those pathogens For example rapid genomic sequencing proteomics epigenomics nanotechnology and other advanced tools are being applied to detect viruses at the point of care and to track their spread within human populations as well as to understand virus host interaction and virus induced pathogenesis From rapid identification of new viruses to prevention with vaccination and treatment with effective therapeutics biomedical research has continuously provided tools to meet the constant threat of emerging viral pathogens Despite these advances each new disease brings unique challenges to scientists every year So we must stay at the cutting edge of scientific discovery working energetically to develop new tools to combat the ever changing threats they pose Our research topic highlights such advanced and new technology based virus research which definitely bolsters the researcher's ability to tackle emerging re-emerging and stable viral pathogens. We are credulous that the papers including in the e-books will be beneficial to the experts in the field to understand the molecular immunological ecological and clinical aspects of the next generation researches for the prevention and control of infectious diseases caused by viruses.

Addiction Research and Evaluation Catherine Comiskey, 2024-09-12 According to the United Nations Office of Drugs and Crime around 284 million people aged between 15 and 64 years used drugs in the year 2020. In addition, it is estimated that over 11 million people were injecting drugs and half of these were living with hepatitis C. Young people are using more drugs than previously and numbers have increased over the past decade. While numbers are estimated at a global level, there remains little evidence for practitioners and policy makers on key questions such as how many people are using drugs that are hidden and haven't contacted services. Questions include the challenging topics of providing safe injecting spaces and drug consumption rooms. As populations age in some regions, questions arise on the nature of substance use among older people. Countries with younger populations are concerned about estimates on the numbers of children potentially impacted by parental substance use and how to engage with them. Awareness of trauma-informed services is increasing and questions arise on the impact of domestic abuse or adverse childhood experiences on people who use drugs and their families. Globally, there is a growing concern on how to inform the debate on cannabis policies and how to assess if the chosen policy will be acceptable to the general population. The aim of this book is to provide researchers, service providers and policy makers with a step-by-step guide to robust methodologies and illustrative case studies to address these challenges. The objective of each chapter is to answer a key question, provide a summary of the background evidence, demonstrate through a series of logical steps how to obtain national or local evidence and finally illustrate the process with detailed real-life case studies. As addiction is encountered across a wide range of professions and civil society organizations, this book will be an essential textbook for graduate students of medicine, nursing, public health, addiction psychology and health and social care professions. It will be a guiding reference book for international, national and local commissioners and providers of related policies and services. At a local level, the step-by-step case studies will provide an easy-to-follow framework for those wishing to apply the methods to benefit and improve their own practice, service or policy.
