Tell about Night Flowers Julia Eichelberger, 2015-07-08 Tell about Night Flowers presents previously unpublished letters by Eudora Welty selected and annotated by scholar Julia Eichelberger Welty published many of her best known works in the 1940s A Curtain of Green The Wide Net The Robber Bridegroom Delta Wedding and The Golden Apples During this period she also wrote hundreds of letters to two friends who shared her love of gardening One friend Diarmuid Russell was her literary agent in New York the other John Robinson was a high school classmate and an aspiring writer who served in the Army in WWII and long the focus of Welty s affection Welty s lyrical witty and poignant discussions of gardening and nature are delightful in themselves they are also figurative expressions of Welty s views of her writing and her friendships Taken together with thirty five illustrations they form a poetic narrative of their own chronicling artistic and psychic developments that were underway before Welty was fully conscious of them By 1949 her art like her friendships had evolved in ways that she would never have predicted in 1940 Tell about Night Flowers not only lets readers glimpse Welty in her garden it also reveals a brilliant and generous mind responding to the public events people art and natural landscapes Welty encountered at home and on her travels during the 1940s This book enhances our understanding of the life landscape and art of a major American writer Floral Biology David G. Lloyd, Spencer C.H. Barrett, 2012-12-06 Studies in floral biology are largely concerned with how flowers function to promote pollination and mating The role of pollination in governing mating patterns in plant populations inextricably links the evolution of pollination and mating systems Despite the close functional link between pollination and mating research conducted for most of this century on these two fundamental aspects of plant reproduction has taken quite separate courses This has resulted in surprisingly little cross fertilization between the fields of pollination biology on the one hand and plant mating system studies on the other The separation of the two areas has largely resulted from the different backgrounds and approaches adopted by workers in these fields Most pollination studies have been ecological in nature with a strong emphasis on field research and until recently few workers considered how the mechanics of pollen dispersal might influence mating patterns and individual plant fitness In contrast work on plant mating patterns has often been conducted in an ecological vacuum largely devoid of information on the environmental and demographic context in which mating occurs Mating system research has been dominated by population genetic and theoretical perspectives with surprisingly little consideration given to the proximate ecological factors responsible for causing a particular pattern of mating to occur scales seldom have any beauty save the beauty of fitness They and the sleeping life which they enfold together constitute the winter bud It contains very little water in its tissues and so can withstand low temperatures without freezing The bud scales live in a chill and sombre world and when the sky is blue and full of light they fall and perish in the heart of spring Yet they are themselves imperfectly formed and partially developed leaves Under certain exceptional circumstances they have shown their possibilities and developed into typical leaves And under most circumstances there is in them the arrested power to become like the green foliage of summer Stunted as they are these scales have done work which perfect leaves could never do Their horny substance has shed the cold rains of winter resisted the frost and protected the tips and shoots in which the life of the branches lay dormant We owe to the bud scales most of the beauty of the summer world Their highest usefulness has been attained through sacrifice of thei
