Toward a New Mission Statement for Canadian Fiscal Federalism Harvey Lazar, 2000 Canada State of the Federation 1999 2000 identifies and explains major threads in Canadian fiscal federalism Set against the cacophony over domineering and arrogant centralization from supporters of Quebec sovereignty on the one hand and fears that excessive decentralization is fuelling an obsessively neo liberal agenda on the other these essays replace much of this heat with new light The authors begin with an examination of recent developments in the theoretical literature surrounding fiscal federalism They then examine some of the major issues facing the federation Is there a vertical imbalance between federal and provincial governments Does Ottawa collect more revenues than are needed relative to its spending responsibilities while the provinces are under funded How do federal provincial struggles over money and jurisdictional power affect local government or the para public sector emerging aboriginal governments and citizens Federal government actions in 1999 suggest that Ottawa has not lost all of its interest in social outcomes It is however seeking to influence the well being of citizens by transferring money to them directly rather than through transfers to provinces The authors suggest that if this trend continues the approach to the millennium will be seen as a watershed in public policy given that current trends in Canadian fiscal federalism are as much about re balancing the federation as they are about decentralization actually a loss of environment All sectors of the economy were affected by the floods but agriculture housing and transport and communication sectors were severely hit and had brought the whole country to a standstill Rescue and rehabilitation efforts carried out with the help of international cooperation achieved some degree of success But for the future Pakistan has to take many physical organisational and technological measures to deal effectively with natural disasters including floods There are many lessons to be learnt from the disastrous 2010 floods and hopefully this study will be useful in that direction
