Economics and Mental Health Thomas G. McGuire, 1999 This paper is concerned with the economics of mental health We argue that mental health economics is like health economics only more so uncertainty and variation in treatments are greater the assumption of patient self interested behavior is more dubious response to financial incentives such as insurance is exacerbated the social consequences and external costs of illness are formidable We elaborate on these statements and consider their implications throughout the chapter Special characteristics of mental illness and persons with mental illness

are identified and related to observations on institutions paying for and providing mental health services We show that adverse selection and moral hazard appear to hit mental health markets with special force We discuss the emergence of new institutions within managed care that address long standing problems in the sector Finally we trace the shifting role of government in this sector of the health economy Economics and Mental Health Richard G. Frank, Willard G. Manning, Jr., 1992-11-01 And they present case studies that outline experimental systems of delivering health care Economics and Mental Health Thomas G. McGuire, Burton Allen Weisbrod, 1981 Mental Illness and the Economy Meyer Harvey Brenner, 1973 By correlating extensive economic and institutional data from New York State for the period from 1841 to 1967 Harvey Brenner concludes that instabilities in the national economy are the single most important source of fluctuations in mental hospital admissions or admission rates This relation is shown to have been relatively stable from pre Civil War times to the present and has not been visibly affected either by changes in psychiatric theory and practice or by any other major social change occurring in society as a whole during that time span Copyright Libri GmbH All rights reserved The Economics of Mental Health Care Ruth Williams, Doessel, 2017-07-28 This title was first published in 2001 This original study of mental health care presents a conceptual approach to the nature of the industry's multiple outputs It pays special attention to the economic role of government and also uses conventional economic theory to analyze the fact that the needs and wants of people with mental illnesses and their care givers are frequently neglected The FDA Follies Herbert Burkholz, 1958-01 Economics of Mental Illness Rashi Fein, 1958 OECD Health Policy Studies Making Mental Health Count The Social and Economic Costs of Neglecting Mental Health Care Hewlett Emily, Moran Valerie, 2014-07-08 This book addresses the high cost of mental illness the organisation of care changes and future directions for the mental health workforce indicators for mental health care and quality and tools for better governance of the system The Economics of Mental Health Care Ruth F.G Williams, Doessel, 2017 This title was first published in 2001 This original study of mental health care presents a conceptual approach to the nature of the industry's multiple outputs It pays special attention to the economic role of government and also uses conventional economic theory to analyze the fact that the needs and wants of people with mental illnesses and their care givers are frequently neglected Provided by publisher Essays on the Economics of Mental Illness and Belief Formation Matthew White Ridley (Scientist in economics), 2022 This thesis consists of three chapters Chapters 1 and 2 study questions relating to the economics of mental illness while Chapter 3 contributes to the literature on the behavioral economics of belief formation The first chapter studies why people who live in poverty are disproportionately affected by mental illness Gautam Rao Frank Schilbach Vikram Patel and I review the interdisciplinary evidence of the bidirectional causal relationship between poverty and common mental illnesses depression and anxiety and the underlying mechanisms Our review shows that mental illness reduces employment and therefore income and that psychological interventions generate economic gains Similarly negative economic shocks cause mental illness and anti poverty programs such as cash transfers improve mental health A crucial step toward the design of effective policies is to better understand the mechanisms underlying these causal effects In the second chapter I study discrimination against people with common mental illnesses in labor market settings one important mechanism through which mental illness may indirectly cause lower employment and income In an online experiment I find that people pay to avoid depressed or anxious coworkers in a simple communication based problem solving task paying as much to avoid them as they do to work with the college educated A model of earnings maximizing statistical discrimination with correct beliefs cannot explain these preferences depressed or anxious coworkers are equally productive when exogenously assigned Instead I find evidence that discrimination is driven by incorrect beliefs about such coworkers as well as an increase in costly effort when working with them A major motivation for tackling discrimination is often to encourage revelation of mental illness thereby perhaps improving access to treatment or support however I find that people pay to hide mental illness in my setting even when insulated from rejection or any financial consequence of discrimination In the third chapter of my thesis John Conlon Malavika Mani Gautam Rao Frank Schilbach and I study social learning between spouses using an experiment in Chennai India We vary whether individuals discover information themselves or must instead learn what their spouse discovered via a discussion Women treat their own and their husband s information the same In sharp contrast men s beliefs respond less than half as much to information that was discovered by their wife This is not due to a lack of communication husbands put less weight on their wife s signals even when perfectly informed of them In a second experiment when paired with mixed and same gender strangers both men and women heavily discount their teammate s information relative to their own We conclude that people have a tendency to underweight others information relative to their own The marital context creates a countervailing force for women resulting in a gender difference in learning only in the household
