Beyond the Paths of Heaven Bruce M. DeBlois, 1999 Major issues have plagued the US military space community for years Foremost among these issues is the relationship between air and space At a recent airpower conference military leaders from the western powers presented discussions of airpower and space issues with a pervasive underlying assumption that the next logical step from the exploitation of airpower and space capabilities was the merging of the two environments toward the exploitation of aerospace power The current distinction between air and space rests on the fiscal and technical inability to merge them an inability that is soon to be overcome Conferees dismissed environmental distinctions between the two on the grounds that there is no absolute boundary between air and space In Paths of Heaven the chapter titled Ascendant Realms Characteristics of Air and Space Power I examine this assumption from the perspective of 21 different military characteristics and conclude it to be invalid The reasons extend well beyond an inability fiscally and technically to merge the two realms

Abstract Subjectivity in the Twenty-First Century Romin W. Tafarodi, 2013-09-23 What is it like to be a person today To think feel and act as an individual in a time of accelerated social cultural technological and political change This question is inspired by the double meaning of subjectivity as both the first personness of consciousness being a subject of experience and the conditioning of that consciousness within society being subject to power authority or influence The contributors to this volume explore the perils and promise of the self in today's world Their shared aim is to describe where we stand and what is at stake as we move ahead in the twenty first century They do so by interrogating the historical moment as a predicament of the subject Their shared focus is on subjectivity as a dialectic of self and other or individual and society and how the defining tensions of subjectivity are reflected in contemporary forms of individualism identity autonomy social connection and political consciousness
