such games are marketed as authentic representations of war they often provide a selective form of realism that eschews problematic yet salient aspects of war In addition changes in the way Western states wage and frame actual wars makes contemporary conflicts increasingly resemble videogames when perceived from the vantage point of Western audiences This interdisciplinary volume brings together scholars from games studies media and cultural studies politics and international relations and related fields to examine the complex relationships between military themed videogames and real world conflict and to consider how videogames might deal with history memory and conflict in alternative ways It asks What is the role of videogames in the formation and negotiation of cultural memory of past wars How do game narratives and designs position the gaming subject in relation to history war and militarism And how far do critical anti war peace games offer an alternative or challenge to mainstream commercial titles

Seeing Things Alan Louis Ackerman, 2011-01-01 A technological revolution has changed the way we see things The storytelling media employed by Pixar Animation Studios Samuel Beckett and William Shakespeare differ greatly yet these creators share a collective fascination with the nebulous boundary between material objects and our imaginative selves How do the acts of seeing and believing remain linked Alan Ackerman charts the dynamic history of interactions between showing and knowing in Seeing Things a richly interdisciplinary study which illuminates changing modes of perception and modern representational media Seeing Things demonstrates that the airy nothings of A Midsummer Night's Dream the Ghost in Hamlet and soulless bodies in Beckett's media experiments alongside Toy Story's digitally animated toys all serve to illustrate the modern problem of visualizing as Hamlet put it that within which passes show Ackerman carefully analyses such ghostly appearances and disappearances across cultural forms and contexts from the early modern period to the present investigating the tension between our distrust of shadows and our abiding desire to believe in invisible realities Seeing Things provides a fresh and surprising cultural history through theatrical verbal pictorial and cinematic representations

Games, Information, and Politics Scott Gates, Brian D. Humes, 2010-08-27 To study the strategic interaction of individuals we can use game theory Despite the long history shared by game theory and political science many political scientists remain unaware of the exciting game theoretic techniques that have been developed over the years As a result they use overly simple games to illustrate complex processes Games Information and Politics is written for political scientists who have an interest in game theory but really do not understand how it can be used to improve our understanding of politics To address this problem Gates and Humes write for scholars who have little or no training in formal theory and demonstrate how game theoretic analysis can be applied to politics They apply game theoretic models to three subfields of political science American politics comparative politics and international relations They demonstrate how game theory can be applied to each of these subfields by drawing from three distinct pieces of research By drawing on examples from current research projects the authors use real research problems not hypothetical questions to develop their discussion of various techniques and to demonstrate how to apply game theoretic models to help answer important political questions

Emphasizing the process of applying game theory Gates and Humes clear up some common misperceptions about game theory and show how it can be used to improve our understanding of politics Games Information and Politics is written for scholars interested in understanding how game theory is used to model strategic interactions It will appeal to sociologists and economists as well as political scientists Scott Gates is Assistant Professor of Political Science Michigan State University Brian D Humes is Associate Professor of Political Science University of Nebraska Lincoln
