media and a new synergy between fashions in clothing and hairstyles have rippled out globally. Fashions in hair styles and their representation have taken on new meanings as a way of resisting dominant social structures, experimenting with social taboos and expressing a modern sense of self. From the 1920s bob to the punk cut, hair has continued to be deeply involved in society's larger issues. Drawing on a wealth of visual, textual and object sources and illustrated with 75 images, A Cultural History of Hair in the Modern Age presents essays that explore how politics, science, religion, fashion, beauty, the visual arts and popular culture have reshaped modern hair and its significance as an agent of social change. Cultures of Ageing Chris Gilleard, Paul Higgs, 2014-08-21. For undergraduate courses in sociology and psychology which examine ageing adulthood. This book focuses on the dramatic changes to the nature of post retirement life experienced by people at the end of the twentieth century. It examines age and ageing in terms of the key preoccupations of contemporary sociology: citizenship, the body and the self. The book provides a platform for a new social gerontology that sees ageing as central to our understanding of social change. It examines social, cultural and political changes in Europe and North America to address the need for a text that moves the study of ageing from social policy towards the mainstream of social science. Interior Design and Identity Susie McKellar, Penny Sparke, 2004-11-27. This chronologically arranged set of case studies looks at how interior design has constantly redefined itself as a manifestation of culture from the eighteenth century to the present day. The book looks at the amateur activities of female home makers in search of creative outlets and married couples seeking to modernize their homes as well as the contributions of early professional female interior decorators and later male interior designers. It also considers the more anonymous role of commercial enterprises such as hairdressing salons, cruise ships or modern offices. Issues relating to interiority, gender and the relationship of the public sphere are also considered, opening up a new level of design historical enquiry. Female Beauty Systems Christine Adams, Tracy Adams, 2015-09-04. Female beauty systems everywhere are complex, integrating markers of class, status, power and sexuality to perform the fundamental function of sorting individuals into categories of more or less desirable. Heirs to the tradition of courtly love, modern western female beauty systems tend to share the norm of man as pursuer, woman as pursued, having developed around the trope of the madly desiring poet or knight supplicating his aloof and lovely lady for her favor. The apparent longevity of the courtly love tradition raises the question of whether the way in which it structures male desire in reaction to female beauty is part of a universal tendency, an evolutionary adaptation, despite clear evidence that female beauty systems are also in fact socially constructed and reflect enormous ambivalence about the power and performance of beauty. Although modern western female beauty systems are routinely demystified and contested today, the purveyors of culture that support them—institutional, intellectual, artistic, commercial and popular—continue as they always have to construe women as objects of male desire. Still within this basic structure, the systems have varied greatly across time and space, with women using beauty as a form of social capital in widely differing ways. Moreover, as individuals have begun to experience their bodies as malleable and endlessly transformable rather than unruly and unyielding many have begun to experience beauty less as a given and more as a project The nine essays collected here examine a number of different Western female beauty systems over the centuries considering how women have complied with contributed to profited or suffered from and resisted them Encyclopedia of
