Good Foods Bad Foods Whats Left To Eat:

Good Foods, Bad Foods Suzanne Havala, 1998-09-24 Bad Foods Michael Oakes, 2017-10-24 Bad Foods demonstrates how a variety of historical or political events and personalities have shaped our current views of good nutrition. On several occasions in American history concerns have arisen over the safety of our food supply e.g. harmful ingredients in processed foods and the potential that processing might deplete foods of their nutrients. These concerns help explain how food characteristics such as freshness, natural, organic, and unprocessed have become important to Americans. Bad Foods traces how the food nutrients fat, salt, and sugar have acquired negative reputations for health, as well as any controversies and outright misconceptions of the dangers of these nutrients. Bad Foods also explores confusion that can in part be attributed to biased media coverage about foods. Modern Americans are routinely bombarded with information about the health value of certain foods and the dangers of others. Frequently, health information about certain nutrients receives exaggerated coverage e.g. dietary fat, while the importance of other nutrients gets ignored e.g. vitamins and minerals. Moreover, health information about foods is often perceived as contradictory. While some readers may be startled by what they perceive to be a challenge to sacred beliefs about foods, others will see the honesty in both the research and the writing and recognize the social benefits of examining our beliefs about foods. Bad Foods will be of interest to sociologists, food science specialists, and social historians.

, Good Food, Bad Waste Erin Silver, 2023-04-11 A deep dive into why humans waste so much food and the consequences for people and the planet. Around the world, a billion tons of food gets thrown away every year, even when hundreds of millions of people suffer from hunger. A lot of what we don't eat ends up rotting in landfills, which contributes to global warming. The good news is that many governments, communities, and individuals are working hard to tackle this giant problem. You can be part of the solution, starting in your own home, and working together, we can decrease our overall waste and make sure all people have food security. Plus, by reducing food waste, we can also fight climate change. With inspiring profiles of food waste activists and tasty tidbits on things like best before dates, Good Food Bad Waste offers much food for thought. Lexi Earl,2018-02-01 Schools and Food Education in the 21st Century examines how schools enact food policy and through doing so craft diverse foodscapes that create very different food experiences in schools The school food policy discourse is made up of an amalgamation of discourses on obesity prevention nutrition education welfarism and foodiness Whilst schools endeavor to enact policy in a variety of ways this book shows how foodiness is taken up and can only be taken up differently in different schools The book s unique contribution is to identify the discourse of foodiness and to show how this discourse whilst seemingly universal is actually situated in middle class ideas and is therefore more easily taken up by certain schools

The book argues that the classed nature of foodiness leads to certain food knowledges becoming marginalized or lost and this then positions some schools in tension with their local communities resulting in widely variant food experiences for children Earl demonstrates how foodiness is taken up in schools by first exploring how the foodscape at school is shaped by policy and media sources The book then examines how foodiness is taken up by schools with different SES profiles by showing how food moves through the school day Asking critical questions on class and poverty that are often overlooked this book will be of interest to researchers academics and students working on food issues related to teaching food policy and schools in the fields of education sociology and food studies It should also be of interest to policymakers parents and teachers
