Some people abuse them.

Prevent elder abuse.

Have you noticed...?

- Physical injuries. For example: large bruises on the face, neck, forearms or back; broken bones, cuts or burns.
- Drastic shifts in the person's financial situation. For example: there's not enough food or the electricity has been turned off.
- A drop in daily upkeep. For example: poor personal hygiene, bed sores or over-sedation.
- Unusual weight loss or weight gain.
- A new unwillingness to talk to friends or loved ones or an avoidance of certain topics.
- A withdrawal from the person's normal activities not explained by age alone.

If you suspect abuse or neglect...

- Report it to your local adult protective services agency and to law enforcement.
- Remember—you do not have to prove abuse is taking place to say something.

Elder Abuse Prevention Lisa Nerenberg, 2007-12-28 I found this book to be informative well researched and well thought out The book is an asset to students scholars and seasoned practioners alike International Perspectives in Victimology Lisa Nerenberg provides the first comprehensive look at elder abuse prevention trends and strategies Drawing from existing models and examining salient factors she outlines approaches to intervention that consider victims and perpetrators and engage communities and service systems She also offers meaningful response to the many challenges endemic to elder abuse work As a result Lisa gives hope to the field Beginning as a grassroots advocate a quarter century ago in San Francisco Lisa developed and tested many viable elder abuse prevention programs herself through the local elder abuse network before exploring best practices elsewhere This unique evolution and perspective gives her the depth and breadth of understanding needed to write a book like this able to resonate equally with adult protective service workers struggling to manage caseloads of vulnerable elders law enforcement personnel trying to prosecute abusers and academics searching for effective responses to the problem Georgia J Anetzberger PhD ACSW Assistant Professor of Health Care Administration at Cleveland State University and Editor of the Journal of Elder Abuse a shift in focus from protecting to empowering victims an increasingly multicultural elderly population the globalization of the field and heightened understanding of the psychology of victimization or why victims do what they do and perhaps more importantly why they often don t do what professionals think they should She further describes eight models and theories on which practice has been based ranging from the widely recognized adult protective service and domestic violence prevention models to lesser known approaches such as the family preservation and restorative justice models She describes specific interventions and approaches that each model has contributed their benefits and limitations what is known about their impact and factors that dictate what responses are appropriate to specific settings and situations In addition to describing techniques used by individual practitioners the author outlines strategies and services that agencies communities states tribes courts and national organizations have designed which include elder forensics centers elder courts family justice centers elder shelters hybrid multidisciplinary teams fraud prevention programs support groups restorative justice programs and culturally specific outreach campaigns She details progressive public policy initiatives which range from statutes that provide for the mandatory reporting of deaths in nursing homes to efforts to improve the collection and distribution of restitution to laws that address the role of undue influence in elder abuse

Elder Abuse and Its Prevention National Research Council, Institute of Medicine, Board on Global Health, Forum on Global Violence Prevention, 2014-03-18 Elder Abuse and Its Prevention is the summary of a workshop convened in April 2013 by the Institute of Medicine s Forum on Global Violence Prevention Using an ecological framework this workshop explored the burden of elder abuse around the world focusing on its impacts on individuals families communities and societies Additionally the workshop addressed occurrences and co occurrences of different types of abuse including physical sexual emotional and financial as well as neglect The ultimate objective was to illuminate promising global and multisectoral evidence based approaches to the prevention of elder maltreatment While the workshop covered scope and prevalence and unique characteristics of abuse the intention was to move beyond what is known about elder abuse to foster discussions about how to improve prevention intervention and mitigation of the victims needs particularly through collaborative efforts The workshop discussions included innovative intervention models and opportunities for prevention across sectors and settings Violence and related forms of abuse against elders is a global public health and human rights problem with far reaching consequences resulting in increased death disability and exploitation with collateral effects on well being Data suggest that at least 10 percent of elders in the United States are victims of elder maltreatment every year In low and middle income countries where the burden of violence is the greatest the figure is likely even higher In addition elders experiencing risk factors such as diminishing cognitive function caregiver dependence and social isolation are more vulnerable to maltreatment and underreporting As the world population of adults aged 65 and older continues to grow the implications of elder maltreatment for health care social welfare justice and financial systems are great However despite the magnitude of global elder maltreatment it has been an underappreciated public health problem Elder Abuse and Its
