Across the margins Glenda Norquay, Gerry Smyth, 2018-07-30 This electronic version has been made available under a Creative Commons BY NC ND open access license The concept of margins denotes geographical economic demographic cultural and political positioning in relation to a perceived centre This book aims to question the term marginal itself to hear the voices talking across borders and not only to or through an English centre The first part of the book examines debates on the political and poetic choice of language drawing attention to significant differences between the Irish and Scottish strategies It includes a discussion of the complicated dynamic of woman and nation by Aileen Christianson which explores the work of twentieth century Scottish and Irish women writers The book also explores masculinities in both English and Scottish writing from Berthold Schoene which deploys sexual difference as a means of testing postcolonial theorizing A different perspective on the notion of marginality is offered by addressing Englishness in relation to migrant writing in prose concerned with India and England after Independence The second part of the book focuses on a wide range of new poetry to question simplified margin centre relations It discusses a historicising perspective on the work of cultural studies and its responses to the relationship between ethnicity and second generation Irish musicians from Sean Campbell The comparison of contemporary Irish and Scottish fiction which identifies similarities and differences in recent developments is also considered In each instance the writers take on the task of examining and assessing points of connection and diversity across a particular body of work while moving away from contrasts which focus on an English norm

Notional Identities Thomas Christie, 2014-07-18 Notional Identities takes up the challenge of engaging with the popular genres of speculative fiction and crime fiction by Scottish authors from the mid 1970s until the beginning of the twenty first century examining a variety of significant novels from across the decades in the light of wider considerations of ideology genre and national identity The book investigates the extent to which the national political and cultural climate of this tumultuous era informed the narrative form and social commentary of such works and considers the manner in which and the extent to which a specific and identifiably Scottish response to these ideological matters can be identified in popular prose fiction during the period under discussion Although Scottish literary fiction of recent decades has been studied in considerable depth Scottish popular genre literature has received markedly less critical scrutiny in comparison Notional Identities aims to help in redressing this balance examining popular Scottish texts of the stated period in order to reflect upon whether a significant relationship can be discerned between genre fiction and the mainstream of

Scottish literary writing and to consider the characteristics of the literary connections which exist between these different modes of writing of the cultural patchwork of Northern Europe These sixteen essays trace ways to tell the stories of connections boundaries and localities that might go undetected by historians and artists The literatures of the islands borderlands and landscapes of the North and Baltic Seas are set in dialogue with contemporary literary and socio political approaches to the study of local national and global cultural constellations disrupting conventional cartographies that paint the margins as passive victims of geography or economics
