Kaltenborn, Nina-Annette Reit-Born, 2016-05-16 This book presents the results of a three year research project based at the Ruhr University Bochum financed by the Fritz Thyssen Foundation Cologne Corruption in public procurement is widespread and particularly damaging to development objectives as it undermines any state's duty to maximize the social and economic welfare of its citizens Yet research on country specific regulation meant to address this problem has remained scarce This book aims to fill this gap by providing a systematic comparative analysis of supplier remedies mechanisms in Kenya Uganda and Tanzania It elaborates on the potential of legal remedies to serve as anticorruption tools Based on the fact that the anti corruption effect of remedies mechanisms depends ultimately on the actual use by suppliers three main factors are discussed 1 the institutional setting and independence of the remedies systems 2 their accessibility for aggrieved bidders and 3 their efficiency driven by bidder's cost benefit analysis and including the aspects of procedural fees duration available relief and prospects of success The assessment of the legislation is complemented by information gained from various stakeholders such as public procurement authorities development organizations NGOs and scientific experts Despite many similarities of the systems due to their common historical background the analysis identifies remarkably different regulative and institutional approaches and discusses their more or less supportive effects on the use of supplier remedies mechanisms

Nationalism and Private Law in Europe Guido Comparato, 2014-12-01 While the internationalisation of society has stimulated the emergence of common legal frameworks to coordinate transnational social relations private law itself is firmly rooted in national law European integration processes have altered this state of affairs to a limited degree with a few albeit groundbreaking interventions that have tended to engender resistance from various actors within European nation states Against that background this book takes as its point of departure the need to understand the process of legal denationalisation within broader political frameworks In particular it seeks to make sense of opposition to Europeanisation at this point in the evolution of European law when despite growing nationalist attitudes great efforts have been made to produce comprehensive legal instruments to synthesise general contract law an area that has traditionally been solely within the ambit of nation states Combining insights from the disciplines of law history and political science the book investigates the conceptual and cultural associations between law and the nation state examines the impact of nationalist ideas in modern legal thought and reveals the nationalist underpinnings of some of the arguments employed against and somewhat paradoxically even in support of legal Europeanisation The author's research for this book has been supported by the Hague Institute for the Internationalisation of Law State responsibility for technological damage in international law Jan

Burke, 2013-05-09 This book aims to resolve the dilemma regarding whether armed intervention as a response to gross human rights violations is ever legally justified without Security Council authorisation Thus far international lawyers have been caught between giving a negative answer on the basis of the UN Charter's rules positivists and a turn to ethics declaring intervention legitimate on moral grounds while eschewing legal analysis moralists In this volume a third solution is proposed The idea is presented that many equitable principles may qualify as general principles of law recognised by civilised nations one of the three principal sources of international law though a category that is often overlooked a conclusion based upon detailed research of both national legal systems and international law These principles having normative force in international law are then used to craft an equitable framework for humanitarian intervention It is argued that the dynamics of their operation allow them to interact with the Charter and customary law in order to fill gaps in the existing legal structure and soften the rigours of strict law in certain circumstances It is posited that many of the moralists' arguments are justified albeit based upon firm legal principles rather than ethical theory The equitable framework proposed is designed to provide an answer to the question of how humanitarian intervention may be integrated into the legal realm Certainly this will not mean an end to controversies regarding concrete cases of humanitarian intervention However it will enable the framing of such controversies in legal terms rather than as a choice between the law and morality has potential to become one of the most important books in public international law of the decade or in a generation Martin Scheinin Professor of Public International Law European University Institute Florence Governing Police Stops Across Europe Elizabeth Aston, Sofie De Kimpe, János Fazekas, Genevieve Lennon, Mike Rowe, 2023-11-17 This book takes a critical and comparative approach to the analysis of the governance of police stops across Europe It draws on an EU COST Action research network on Police Stops which engaged academics and practitioners from 29 countries to better understand the practice of police stops It begins by examining how police stops are defined and the various legal rules and levels of accountability afforded The chapters are arranged by theme to focus on a core aspect of the governance of police stops These include legal frameworks and police discretion internal governance external accountability and civilian oversight possibilities for legal recourse and the different roles of data and technology Each compares the distinct approaches evident across Europe often employing case studies The book adopts a critical approach acknowledging governance as contested and involving diverse state non state and supranational actors It considers implications for policing in a rapidly changing environment globally
