Raz, 2020-03-23 In 1996 over 16 million people visited Tokyo Disneyland making it the most popular of the many theme parks in Japan Since it opened in 1983 Tokyo Disneyland has been analyzed mainly as an example of the globalization of the American leisure industry and its organizational culture particularly the company manual By looking at how Tokyo Disneyland is experienced by employees management and visitors Aviad Raz shows that it is much more an example of successful importation adaptation and domestication and that it has succeeded precisely because it has become Japanese even while marketing itself as foreign Rather than being an agent of Americanization Tokyo Disneyland is a simulated America showcased by and for the Japanese It is an America with a Japanese meaning

Divided Fates Kazuko Suzuki, 2016-05-12 Winner ASA Book Award on Asia Transnational 2017 This book compares the Korean diasporic groups in Japan and the United States It highlights the contrasting adaptation of Koreans in Japan and the United States and illuminates how the destinies of immigrants who originally belonged to the same ethnic national collectivity diverge depending upon destinations and how they are received in a certain state and society within particular historical contexts The author finds that the mode of incorporation a specific combination of contextual factors rather than ethnic culture and race plays a decisive role in determining the fates of these Korean immigrant groups In other words what matters most for immigrants integration is not their particular cultural background or racial similarity to the dominant group but the way they are received by the host state and other institutions Thus this book is not just about Korean immigrants it is also about how contexts of reception including different conceptualizations of race in relation to nationhood affect the adaptation of immigrants from the same ethnic national origin
