

ELECTRICAL POWER TECHNOLOGY

A photograph of a large industrial electrical substation. In the foreground, a large, circular metal component, possibly a transformer or a large switch, is visible. A worker in a hard hat and safety gear is standing to the left, looking down at something. The background shows more of the substation structure, including insulators and other equipment. The overall color scheme is dominated by the blue and grey of the metal, with a warm, slightly reddish tint from the lighting.
