NILS SOGUEL Smoking is a very common habit all over the world The prevalence rate ranges from 20% 40% in industrialised countries and is dramatically increasing in the developing world Smoking is risky and there is ample scientific evidence to support this statement We know that smoking is a major cause of disease and premature death in view of the fact that 3 million people die each year worldwide as a result of their smoking habit Twenty years ago the U S Surgeon General identified smoking as the single most important cause of morbidity and premature death USDHEW 1979 Tobacco consumption reduces life expectancy vastly Epidemiological research shows that people who have died from a smoking related disease would on average have lived for an additional 15 years had they not been smokers Warner 1987 The economic analysis of tobacco consumption is a complex and challenging issue which entails addressing many different questions What is the economic burden of smoking and do smokers pay their way How do individuals perceive their own health risks What is the effect of the addicting properties of nicotine on the behaviour of a rational utility maximizing individual Lastly what is the most effective way to discourage tobacco consumption In this context the assessment of the social burden of smoking using a cost of illness framework has played a central role since the beginning of the seventies

Wise, 2009-05-15 The Economics of Aging presents results from an ongoing National Bureau of Economic Research project Contributors consider the housing mobility and living arrangements of the elderly their labor force participation and retirement the economics of their health care and their financial status The goal of the research is to further our understanding both of the factors that determine the well being of the elderly and of the consequences that follow from an increasingly older population with longer individual life spans Each paper is accompanied by critical commentary The Price of Smoking Frank A. Sloan, Jan Ostermann, Christopher Conover, Donald H. Taylor, Gabriel Picone, 2006-08-11 What does a pack of cigarettes cost a smoker the smoker's family and society This longitudinal study on the private and social costs of smoking calculates that the cost of smoking to a 24 year old woman smoker is 86 000 over a lifetime for a 24 year old male smoker the cost is 183 000 The total social cost of smoking over a lifetime including both private costs to the smoker and costs imposed on others including second hand smoke and costs of Medicare Medicaid and Social Security comes to 106 000 for a woman and 220 000 for a man The cost per pack over a lifetime of smoking almost 40 00 The first study to quantify the cost of smoking in this way or in such depth this accessible book not only adds a weapon to the arsenal of antismoking messages but also provides a framework for assessment that can be applied to other health behaviors The findings on the effects of smoking on Medicare and Medicaid will be surprising and perhaps controversial for the authors estimate the costs to be much lower than the damage awards being paid to 46 states as a result of the 1998 Master Settlement Agreement

Killer Diseases, Modern-Day Epidemics
Swarna Moldanado, PhD, MPH, Alex Moldanado, MD, 2017-08-22 In the past 100 years the average lifespan in the United States alone has increased by nearly thirty years However the years gained are being plagued by non infectious killer chronic diseases in epidemic proportions that are increasingly contributing to poor health and premature death in later years Americans may be squandering the longevity they gained in the twentieth century by succumbing in the twenty first century to these preventable killer chronic diseases largely attributable to dietary and lifestyle choices The prevalence of chronic diseases such as heart disease type 2 diabetes cancer and obesity along with the steadily rising human and economic costs surrounding them have spurred research into the causes and risk factors of these diseases for several decades Researchers have been able to establish evidence based links between an increased risk for these chronic diseases and exposure to certain environmental lifestyle and genetic factors In this book the authors explore the evidence based connection between lifestyle choices and these killer chronic diseases providing insight into choices that will hold the disease at bay and effective use of recommended preventative services for early detection and intervention Available evidence unequivocally points to the fact that chronic diseases strike people with a particular set of lifestyle choices more often than they affect others who do not make those choices Adopting healthier choices at any age and stage of disease progression has proportional benefits This lifestyle disease connection makes it possible to not only prevent a chronic disease from setting in but also to stop it in its tracks when detected early and sometimes even reverse it Finally the case examples contributed by the authors bring to life

Commodity and Resource Policies in Agricultural Systems Richard E. Just,Nancy Bockstael,2012-12-06 Agricultural natural resource and environmental problems are becoming increasingly interdependent For example soil erosion is largely determined by agricultural land use Both water use and water contamination depend on land use and technology choice in agriculture In many areas the fertilizers and pesticides used in agriculture are major pollutants of ground and surface water having adverse effects on drinking water and fisheries Agricultural pollutants such as pesticides also produce adverse health effects for agricultural workers and the consuming public On the other hand the availability of water resources and the value of competing land uses influence agricultural production Additionally regional air quality problems may affect crops and global environmental trends may have long term implications for farming Agriculture natural resources and environmental quality are all heavily regulated in the U S but they are done so by a vast array of competing or unrelated agencies within the U S Departments of Agriculture Interior and Commerce the Environmental Protection Agency and numerous state agencies Considering the large number of bureaucratically remote public agencies involved and the pervasive interdependencies between agriculture natural resources and the environment policies develop which are at best uncoordinated and at worst conflicting and counterproductive These policies have become sources of controversy as different interest groups struggle to affect their implementation as different agencies have fought for administrative control and as legislative bodies have attempted to enact piecemeal changes
