The Economics of Sustainability John C.V. Pezzey, Michael A. Toman, 2017-09-08 Before the late 1980s when the ideas of sustainability and sustainable development to the forefront of public debate conventional neo classical economic thinking about development and growth had rarely given any consideration to the needs of future generations or the sustainability of natural resource use Defining sustainability broadly as intergenerational fairness in the long term decision making of a whole society and using established economic concepts this selection of refereed journal articles brings a famously ill defined concept into sharp focus providing academics at all levels with a formidable research tool Spanning thirty years of the most important philosophical theoretical and empirical contributions from both critics and defenders of neo classical assumptions and methods of economic analysis this focused collection of papers constitutes a unique balanced resource on the full range of intellectual debates surrounding the economics of sustainability

The Politics of Making Kinship Erdmute Alber, David Warren Sabean, Simon Teuscher, Tatjana Thelen, 2022-12-09 The long tradition of Western political thought included kinship in models of public order but the social sciences excised it from theories of the state public sphere and democratic order Kinship has however neither completely disappeared from the political cultures of the West nor played the determining social and political role ascribed to it elsewhere Exploring the issues that arise once the divide between kinship and politics is no longer taken for granted The Politics of Making Kinship demonstrates how political processes have shaped concepts of kinship over time and conversely how political projects have been shaped by specific understandings idioms and uses of kinship Taking vantage points from the post Roman era to early modernity and from colonial imperialism to the fall of the Berlin Wall and beyond this international set of scholars place kinship centerstage and reintegrate it with political theory

Agency and Causal Explanation in Economics Peter Róna, László Zsolnai, 2019-11-07 This open access book provides an exploration of the consequences of the ontological differences between natural and social objects sometimes described as objects of nature and objects of thought in the workings of causal and agency relationships One of its important and possibly original conclusions is that causal and agency relationships do not encompass all of the dependent relationships encountered in social life The idea that social reality is contingent has been known and largely undisputed at least since Wittgenstein's On Certainty but social science and most notably economics has continued to operate on the basis of causal and agency theories borrowed or adapted from the natural sciences This volume contains essays that retain and justify the partial or qualified use of this approach and essays that totally reject any use of causal and agency theory built on determined facts closed systems The rejection is based on the possibly original claim that whereas causation in the objects of the natural sciences reside in their properties human action is a matter of intentionality It engages with critical realist theory and re examines the role of free will in theories of human action in general and economic theory in particular Economic Growth and Resources
