The European Environmental Conscience in EU Politics Thomas Hoerber, Gabriel Weber, 2021-12-06 Based on empirical studies of European energy and environmental policies this book suggests that in combination these two policy fields form a consensus in the EU which might also become the basis for a new European ideology namely European sustainability It asks why an environmental conscience has grown since the late 1960s in the industrialised world and shows that whilst there is undeniable environmental degradation during this time and that a European environmental conscience has mainly developed through successive steps of European integration in energy policy. In this connection between energy and the environment we find one driver for European integration and indeed European identity. If sustainability should become a European ideology it will substantially influence the way future Europeans will live. This book will be of key interest to scholars and students of European Studies, International Relations, Political Science, History, Economics, Sustainability Studies, Environmental and Energy Policies in Europe.

The Empirical and Institutional Dimensions of Smart Specialisation Philip McCann, Frank van Oort, John Goddard, 2016-11-25. Smart specialisation is the new policy approach to the development of regional innovation systems across Europe and it involves fostering innovative and entrepreneurial initiatives which are well tailored to the local context. The different technologies, skills, profiles, business activities, institutions and sectors which reflect a region's economic strengths and potential are to be fostered and encouraged to diversify in ways which also exploit the region's linkages with broader global value chains. Yet the ideas contained in the smart specialisation agenda have until now been primarily conceptual in nature. The Empirical and Institutional Dimensions of Smart Specialisation draws together some of the leading regional economists and scientists in Europe to analyse how smart specialisation is working in practice. This book investigates different dimensions of the agenda as it is developing across parts of Europe from both quantitative and qualitative perspectives. The quantitative analysis examines the nature of the diversification processes undertaken by regions and the interplay between the chosen local regional development priorities and the wider global value chain impacts of these choices. Meanwhile the qualitative analysis examines the institutional opportunities and challenges facing policy makers and the key elements most likely to provide the underpinnings of a workable set of policy settings. The book is aimed both at academic researchers interested in the interface between economic geography and regional innovation systems as well as at policy makers making public policy decisions related to regional development at the local, city, regional or national levels.

Planning for Regional Development in the UK , European Union: The Basics Alex Warleigh-Lack,2008 The European Union's Africa Policies Daniela Sicurelli,2016-12-05 The European Union EU is a key partner for African regional organizations and a major promoter of economic and political integration in the region Several studies have interpreted the EU s role in Africa as either a self interested hegemonic actor or as a value oriented normative power In this volume Daniela Sicurelli challenges these views by taking a closer look at Europe s policies towards Sub Saharan Africa in the area of peacekeeping trade and development and environmental protection Using fresh empirical evidence including interviews with both European and African officials she argues that the EU is far from becoming a unitary player in Africa Lacking a clear strategy and coherent normative framework the EU should be considered a multi level actor where national and supranational institutions have different interests and push forward contrasting views of what role Europe should play in Africa The ability of single institutions to frame an issue as requiring either intergovernmental or supranational procedures appears crucial for shaping the content of European Africa policies An original contribution to the growing literature on the EU as an international actor this book is extremely useful to scholars researchers and policy makers demanding critical work in the field of EU Africa policy Law and Language in the European Union Richard L. Creech,2005 The European Economic Community founded in 1957 consisted of six Member States with a combined total of four official languages By 2004 this organization had evolved into a European Union of twenty five Member States with more than twenty official languages among them This increase has presented numerous challenges to the EU s internal linguistic regime where formal policy has been with some notable exceptions to treat all of these languages equally Some of these languages English in particular have been more equal than others Languages that lack nation wide official status in any Member State such as Catalan and Welsh have been overtly denied equal treatment Furthermore the multilingual nature of the EU has had significant implications for any Member State that wishes to regulate the use of language within its territory as such regulation can interfere with the rights accorded to citizens of other Member States to participate in free commercial movement throughout the Union Law and Language in the European Union now in paperback examines how in the linguistic realm the EU has responded to the tensions that lie behind this paradoxical motto
