Environment Pollutants And Womens Health:

Environmental Impacts on Women's Health Disparities and Reproductive Health: Advancing environmental health equity in clinical and public health practice Darlene Dixon, Melissa M. Smarr, Kristen Rappazzo, 2024-11-07 On April 27-28, 2022, the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences (NIEHS) hosted a workshop to examine the effects of chemical and non-chemical stressors on maternal and fetal adverse health outcomes, discuss diseases specific to women and individuals assigned female at birth, and to assess the role of racial and ethnic disparities in environmental exposures. The concepts of early and lifetime exposures and the correlation between socioeconomic status, hazardous exposures, and communities of color were explored, with a focus on the synergistic impacts on women's health. Current research and knowledge gaps in the context of environmental exposures and women's reproductive health disparities were examined. This Research Topic reflects the work presented at the NIEHS 2-day workshop or work suggesting critical ways to advance environmental health disparities and women's reproductive health research or environmental health equity in public health and clinical practice. Women, the Environment and Sustainable Development Rosi Braidotti, International Research and Training Institute for the Advancement of Women, 1994. There is a widespread perception that the development process is in a state of multiple crisis. While the notion of sustainable development is supposed to address adequately its environmental dimensions, there is still no agreed framework relating women to this new perspective. This book is an attempt to present and disentangle the various positions put forward by major actors and to clarify the political and theoretical issues that are at stake in the debates on women, the environment, and sustainable development. Among the current critiques of the western model of development, which the authors review, are the feminist analysis of Science itself and the power relations inherent in the production of knowledge. Women, Environment and Development WED Alternative Development Environmental Reformism and Deep Ecology Social Ecology and Ecofeminism. In traversing this important landscape of ideas, they show how they criticise the dominant developmental model at the various levels of epistemology, theory, and policy. The authors also go further and put forward their own ideas as to the basic elements they consider necessary in constructing a paradigmatic shift, emphasising such values as holism, mutuality, justice, autonomy, self-reliance, sustainability, and peace. This unique work is a signally useful contribution to clarifying thinking on a topic with immense implications for all women. Karen Druffel, 2019-01-04 This volume was first published by Inter Disciplinary Press in 2013 Can we adopt human rights concepts long used to frame problems of social justice to define environmental justice Can existing social institutions provide models and tools for achieving environmental justice This volume views old models of agency through new lenses and examines how several social institutions such as law education and health care address specific environmental problems The volume presents arguments for human obligations towards the environment and future generations Scholars assess the limitations of existing models and others point to recent failures in protecting the interests of indigenous groups or species And on a hopeful note examples are given of institutions that promise some success in effecting environmental goals As this discussion of citizenship suggests much like environmental justice a global context both in definition and application is required

Khalil,Wiame W. M. Emam,Abdelazim Negm,2025-01-25 This book provides a detailed and a clear picture about the impact of climate changes on all aspects of our lives The book will shed some lights on the challenges and obstacles that agricultural development in different countries are going through regarding the dimensions of food security due to climate change The vulnerability of agricultural system will be discussed and the methods to adapt to some impacts of climate change will be projected Some authors will focus on how

Global Climate change may directly or indirectly affect the water cycle and consequently the quantity and quality of water resources needed to meet human and environmental demands. It can lead to recurrent floods and droughts, rising sea water levels with serious effect on coastal aquifers and extreme water temperatures that can exacerbate many forms of water pollution. Water supply, reliability, health, agriculture, energy, biodiversity and aquatic ecosystems will all suffer the impact of such challenges. The demand for water to meet these needs is also affected by climate change. Evidently adopting a holistic water energy food nexus approach while promoting the use of non conventional water resources can better support a transition to sustainability, a fact that should appeal to national interest and encourage governments, the private sector and civil society to engage. The results of the Climate changes conference COP 27 that held in Sharm El Sheikh in 2022 will be discussed in some chapters to illustrate the several efforts that have been taken by some countries to adapt to climate changes including continuous breeding program to produce crops adapted to higher temperature, salinity, shorter in life cycle and better in post harvest and shelf life. The efforts to improve on farm water management and reduce water consumption in agriculture to increase water productivity will be discussed. Saving water from agriculture will be associated with saving fertilizers to control GHG emissions and could allow allocating water for land reclamation. Some Chapters aim at highlighting the impact of climate change on water resources depending on a clear understanding of how climate, fresh water and biophysical and socio economic systems are interconnected at the global and regional scales. Meanwhile presenting state of the art technologies and innovative holistic solutions for adaptation and mitigation measures and increasing the resilience of vulnerable communities to climate change with the ultimate goal of achieving sustainable development towards the future we want while leaving no one behind.
