Environmental History in the Making Estelita Vaz, Cristina Joanaz de Melo, Lígia M. Costa Pinto, 2016-10-13 This book is the product of the 2nd World Conference on Environmental History held in Guimarães Portugal in 2014 It gathers works by authors from the five continents addressing concerns raised by past events so as to provide information to help manage the present and the future It reveals how our cultural background and examples of past territorial intervention can help to combat political and cultural limitations through the common language of environmental benefits without disguising harmful past human interventions Considering that political ideologies such as socialism and capitalism as well as religion fail to offer global paradigms for common ground an environmentally positive discourse instead of an ecological determinism might serve as an umbrella common language to overcome blocking factors real or invented and avoid repeating ecological loss Therefore agency environmental speech and historical research are urgently needed in order to sustain environmental paradigms and overcome political cultural and economic interests in the public arena This book intertwines reflections on our bonds with landscapes processes of natural and scientific transfer across the globe the changing of ecosystems the way in which scientific knowledge has historically both accelerated destruction and allowed a better distribution of vital resources or as it in today's world can offer alternatives that avoid harming those same vital natural resources water soil and air In addition it shows the relevance of cultural factors both in the taming of nature in favor of human comfort and in the role of the environment matters in the forging of cultural identities which cannot be detached from technical intervention in the world In short the book firstly studies the past approaching it as a data set of how the environment has shaped culture secondly seeks to understand the present and thirdly assesses future perspectives what to keep what to change and what to dream anew considering that conventional solutions have not sufficed to protect life on our planet

Evolutionary History Edmund Russell, 2011-04-11

We tend to see history and evolution springing from separate roots one grounded in the human world and the other in the natural world Human beings have however become probably the most powerful species shaping evolution today and human caused evolution in other species has probably been the most important force shaping human history This book introduces readers to evolutionary history a new field that unites history and biology to create a fuller understanding of the past than either can produce on its own Evolutionary history can stimulate surprising new hypotheses for any field of history and evolutionary biology How many art historians would have guessed that sculpture encouraged the evolution of tuskless elephants How many biologists would have predicted that human poverty would accelerate animal evolution How many military historians would have suspected that plant evolution would convert a counter insurgency strategy into a rebel subsidy With examples from around the globe this book will help readers see the broadest patterns of history and the details of their own life in a new light

An Environmental History of the World J. Donald Hughes, 2002-09-26

An Environmental History of the World is a concise history from Ancient to Modern times of the interaction between human societies and the other forms of life that inhabit our planet This original work follows a chronological path through the history of mankind in relationship to ecosystems around the world Each chapter concentrates on a general period in human history which has been characterised by large scale changes in the relationship of human societies to the biosphere and gives three case studies that illustrate the significant patterns occurring at that time Little environmental or historical knowledge is assumed from the reader in this introduction to environmental history
