Environmental Justice in Early Victorian Literature

Adrian Tait,2023-08-30 This innovative new book combines environmental justice scholarship with a material ecocriticism to explore the way in which early Victorian literature 1837 1860 responded to the growing problem of environmental injustice As this book emphasises environmental injustice simply the convergence of poverty and pollution was not an isolated phenomenon but a structural form of inequality a product of industrial modernity s radical reformation of British society it particularly affected the working classes As each chapter reveals in detail this form of environmental inequality or classism drew sharply critical reactions from figures as diverse as Thomas Carlyle Friedrich Engels Charles Dickens and John Ruskin and from within the Chartist movement as working class writers themselves reacted to the hazardous realities of a divided society But as this book also reveals these writers recognised that a truly just society respects the needs of the nonhuman and takes account of the material world in all its own aliveness even if only tentatively they reached for a more inclusive emergent form of justice that might address the social and ecological impacts of industrial modernity an idea which is no less relevant today This book represents an indispensable resource for scholars and students working in the fields of Victorian literature environmental justice and ecocriticism An Integrated Approach to
