Training for Work in the Informal Micro-Enterprise Sector Hans Christiaan Haan, 2006-10-04 In Sub Sahara Africa the sector of informal micro enterprises IMEs is already employing a large share of the labour force in both urban and rural areas This study reviews the ways in which the owners and workers of IMEs have acquired their vocational and management skills It reviews the contributions of all the different training providers including public sector training institutes private sector training providers and training centres run by NGOs and other non profit organizations The study finds that informal apprenticeship training is by far the most common source of various skills in some countries it is likely to be responsible for 80 90% of all ongoing training efforts Informal apprenticeship training presents a number of important advantages At the same time it has a number of limitations The study concludes that there is a major challenge to improve the transfer of relevant skills to IME operators both through pre employment training and skills upgrading In view of the scope of the challenge to provide hundreds of thousands IME owners and workers as well as large numbers of out of school youths with relevant practical and management skills it suggests to build upon the strengths of the existing practices of informal apprenticeship training and to remedy its weaknesses by involving professional training providers in upgrading its training organization and delivery quality and efficiency and final training outcomes It reviews the results of a number of innovative interventions in different African countries that are working in this direction Finally the study suggests that there is an interesting potential in business embedded training provided by private companies as part of their regular business operations

McGrath, 2002-01-01 This book examines some of the major challenges faced by African education by placing them in two important contexts First it explores how new economic dynamics linked to globalisation impact upon educational priorities and possibilities Second it stresses the need to locate educational policies and practices alongside approaches in other sectors This leads to an analysis of the intersections between education training and enterprise development Through detailed examinations of recent policies and practices in Ghana Kenya and South Africa the book shows how different national approaches emerge in spite of apparent convergences in donor agency policy and international policy discourses Aimed at policy makers and practitioners as well as academics the book outlines a series of theoretical policy and practical challenges for the future of African education and its broader role in development Global Exchanges and Gender Perspectives in Africa Jean-Bernard Ouédraogo, Roseline M. Achieng', 2011 The global perspectives adopted in this volume by the authors from different academic disciplines and social experiences ought not to be locked in sterile linearity which within process of globalisation would fail to perceive the irreversible opening up of the worlds of the south There is the need within the framework of the analyses presented here to quite cogently define the sense of the notion of the market The market here does not refer to saving or the localised exchange of goods a perspective which is imposed by normative perceptions In fact a strictly materialistic reading of exchange would be included since every social practice and interaction implies a communitarian transaction meanwhile the exchange system under study here broadens to root out the obligation of the maximisation of mercantile profit from the cycle of exchange Trade here would have a meaning closer to those of old one of human interaction in a way that one could also refer to bon commerce between humans In one way trade places itself at the heart of social exchanges included the power of money and is carried along by a multitude of social interactions The reader is called upon to take into account the major mercantile formations of the social trade system the market society without forgetting the diversity of exchange routes as well as the varying modalities of social construction at the margins and within market logics those of implicit value in trade between humans which the texts herein also seek to review The age old project of restructuring the domestic economy the market society as it has developed in the West whence it has set out to conquer the whole wide world places at the very centre of the current capitalist expansion the challenge of imperatively reshaping gender identity inter alia in market relations

Entrepreneurship in Africa Ven Sriram, David Lingelbach, Tigineh Mersha, Franklyn Manu, 2020-11-16 It is now widely recognized that in regions like Africa for economic and other reasons the public sector has had to disengage and divest from many areas of the economy and allow private enterprise especially scalable start ups and new ventures to enter and flourish if economic development and employment are to grow There is however a training and education gap since entrepreneurship is rarely taught formally at African universities and when it is it is often approached from a Western perspective which may not be appropriate given that African environments are significantly different from most Western ones in terms of economic infrastructure and political considerations This book allows readers to understand the African entrepreneurial context by guiding them through the principal stages in the life of a new venture and offers approaches both Western and indigenous that can inform their entrepreneurial actions It concludes by examining some specialized topics including female youth and social entrepreneurship as well as real estate and technology Exercises throughout the book will enable readers to evaluate their motivations and preparedness for entrepreneurship and learn how to communicate a new venture's key features to potential stakeholders By focusing on the distinctive features of entrepreneurship in the African context and taking a conversational tone this is an informative and practical text that will be useful for students of Global Entrepreneurship and Business as well as actual and prospective entrepreneurs in the private non profit and public sectors

The Emerging Middle Class in Africa Mthuli Ncube, Charles Lufumpa, 2014-10-10 The emergence of the African middle class as a driver of Africa's economic growth stands out as an important milestone in Africa's contemporary economic history. This growth, though uneven, is a source of hope for Africa but also a signal to the rest of the world on the prospects for economic recovery and renewal, particularly because it has been steady despite the global downturn. The Emerging Middle Class in Africa analyses specific aspects of the lives of the middle class in Africa. It looks at how people become and remain in the middle class through a series of thematic chapters. It examines how behaviour changes in the process in terms of consumption patterns and spending on health and education. A further dimension of this analysis is how class impacts on gender relations and whether women are able to reap the same benefits of social advancement available to men. Africa is a continent of such scale and diversity that experiences across countries vary widely. The book thus captures the common patterns across the continent. This text is primarily aimed at Africanist researchers, policy makers, development practitioners and bilateral and multilateral institutions as well as students of African studies, political science, political economy, development studies and development economics.
