Environment In The 21st Century And New Development Patterns:

Environment in the 21st Century and New Development Patterns K. Matsushita, 2013-06-29 Economic growth after World War II was made possible through dramatic increases in the use of material resources and energy. It is apparent that current development patterns followed by industrialized countries are causing serious environmental problems and that they are neither ecologically nor socially sustainable. In recent years many Asian developing countries which have suffered from poverty for decades are experiencing high rates of economic growth by introducing material intensive production and consumption patterns. The globalization trends magnify on a global scale the problems associated with current development patterns. How can we transform existing economic and social systems into more environmentally benign and sustainable ones? This book presents a number of issues that must be considered when discussing new development patterns which are environmentally friendly and socially fair. It covers concepts of new development patterns, new energy and water supply, sustainable agriculture, information technology, and environment information disclosure and poverty alleviation. Audience: This volume will be of interest to those who are involved in innovative interdisciplinary policy studies on environment and development particularly in Asia and the Pacific region. Also those who are interested in realizing sustainable development through agriculture, water supply, information technology, chemical industry, and sustainability issues in China and India.

Environmental education is a field characterised by a paradox. Few would doubt the urgency and importance of learning to live in sustainable ways but environmental education holds nowhere near the priority position in formal schooling around the world that this would suggest. This text sets out to find out why this is so. It is divided into six parts. Part 1 is a concise history of the development of environmental education from an international perspective. Part 2 is an overview of the global agenda or subject knowledge of environmental education. Part 3 introduces perspectives on theory and research in environmental education. Part 4 moves on to practice and presents an integrated model for planning environmental education programmes. Part 5 brings together invited contributors who talk about environmental education in their own countries from 15 countries including China, South Africa, Sri Lanka and the USA. Part 6 returns to the core questions of how progress can be made and how we can maximise the potential of environmental education for the twenty first century. Machine Learning

Technologies on Energy Economics and Finance Mohammad Zoynul Abedin, Wang Yong, 2025-07-25 This book explores the latest innovations in energy economics and finance with a particular focus on the role of machine learning algorithms in advancing the energy sector. It examines key factors shaping this field including market structures, regulatory frameworks, environmental impacts, and the dynamics of the global energy market. It discusses the critical application of machine learning (ML) in energy financing, introducing predictive tools for forecasting energy prices across various sectors such as crude oil.
