Nicholson, Katharine W. Dixon, 1979 Oil Spill Response in the Marine Environment J.W. Doerffer, 2013-10-22 The rapid economic development of many countries since World War II has resulted in a considerable increase in the marine transport of raw materials especially of crude oils and in offshore activities Inevitably operational discharges from ships ballast and bilge water incidents such as collisions and groundings and offshore exploration of oil and gas lead to a significant amount of oil going into the sea So far understanding of marine environments of oil and its behaviour when released onto the water surface and of the methods and means of response to an oil spill has been rather limited This book introduces the reader to these problems and reflects the levels and trends of development in the field The author has played an active role in combating marine pollution in the international arena since the 1970s and was awarded the International Maritime Prize for 1989 by the International Maritime Organisation Marine Pollution Contingency Planning Anastasia Telesetsky, Warwick Gullett, Seokwoo Lee, 2017-09-25 There is an ever present threat of catastrophic marine pollution incidents as illustrated by recent disasters such as the Deepwater Horizon oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico Even small scale accidental pollution discharges can have long term consequences for marine and coastal resources The UN Convention on the Law of Sea obliges all States to cooperate to prevent accidents and to minimize environmental damage during emergencies by jointly developing and implementing marine pollution contingency plans The Asia Pacific is one of the world s busiest shipping regions some of its mega ports experience high rates of vessel congestion and there are increasing numbers of offshore installations Marine pollution prevention planning is thus vital for the region Marine Pollution Contingency Planning State Practice in Asia Pacific States outlines and examines marine pollution contingency planning in Australia Canada China Japan Korea Malaysia Mexico Philippines Singapore and the United States Oil Pollution Reports , 1978
