cases of accelerating change including Russia Iran South Africa and Turkey and examines some of the theoretical issues involved in conceptualizing social change and transformation and the methods for their study The fifteen essays in this collection will be of interest to all students of history and the social sciences and especially to students of social anthropology sociology and development studies Legitimacy Italo Pardo, Giuliana B. Prato, 2018-10-17 Global in scope this original and thought provoking collection applies new theory on legitimacy and legitimation to urban life An informed reflection on this comparatively new topic in anthropology in relation to morality action law politics and governance is both timely and innovative especially as worldwide discontent among ordinary people grows The ethnographically based analyses offered here range from banking to neighbourhoods from poverty to political action at the grassroots They recognize the growing gap between the rulers and the ruled with particular attention to the morality of what is right as opposed to what is legal This book is a unique contribution to social theory fostering discussion across the many boundaries of anthropological and sociological studies Anthropological Perspectives on Local Development Simone Abram, Jacqueline

Waldren, 2003-12-16 This collection examines the conflicts and realities of development at a local empirical level It provides a series of case studies which illuminate the attitudes and actions of all of those involved in local development schemes The material is drawn from Southern and Eastern Europe Asia and Africa All the contributors use rigorous anthropological methods of analysis to shed light on the place of feelings of personal sentiment and identity in reactions to planned development schemes In a world where direct action and public protest are routine responses to local development schemes they show how protesters developers and politicians often hold very different fundamental views about the environment society government and development which go beyond partisan economic and political interests Conflicts in Conservation Stephen M. Redpath, R. J. Gutiérrez, Kevin A. Wood, Juliette C. Young, 2015-05-07 Conflicts over the conservation of biodiversity are increasing and are serious obstacles to wildlife conservation efforts worldwide Changing patterns in land use over exploitation pollution climate change and the threat posed by invasive species all challenge the way we currently maintain and protect biodiversity from the local management of single species to the international management of resources Integrating approaches from different academic disciplines policy makers and practitioners this volume offers a radically new cross disciplinary multi scale approach to deal with conflicts Groundbreaking strategies for conservation are analysed and a large section of the book is devoted to exploring case studies of conflict from around the world Aimed primarily at academics researchers and students from disciplines relating to conservation ecology natural resources management and environmental governance this book will be equally valuable to conservation NGOs and practitioners and the policy community at national and international levels Culture and Conservation Eleanor Shoreman-Ouimet, Helen Kopnina, 2015-11-19 Today there is growing interest in conservation and anthropologists have an important role to play in helping conservation succeed for the sake of humanity and for the sake of other species Equally important however is the fact that we as the species that causes extinctions have a moral responsibility to those whose evolutionary unfolding and very future we threaten This volume is an examination of the relationship between conservation and the social sciences particularly anthropology It calls for increased collaboration between anthropologists conservationists and environmental scientists and advocates for a shift towards an environmentally focused perspective that embraces not only cultural values and human rights but also the intrinsic value and rights to life of nonhuman species This book demonstrates that cultural and biological diversity are intimately interlinked and equally threatened by the industrialism that endangers the planet's life giving processes The consideration of ecological data as well as an expansion of ethics that embraces more than one species is essential to a well rounded understanding of the connections between human behavior and environmental wellbeing This book gives students and researchers in anthropology conservation environmental ethics and across the social sciences an invaluable insight into how innovative and intensive new interdisciplinary approaches questions ethics and subject pools can close the gap between culture and conservation

The Cultural Context of Biodiversity Conservation

Petra Maass, 2008 How are biological diversity protected areas indigenous knowledge and religious worldviews related From an anthropological perspective this book provides an introduction into the complex subject of conservation policies that cannot be addressed without recognising the encompassing relationship between discursive political economic social and ecological facets By facing these interdependencies across global national and local dynamics it draws on an ethnographic case study among Maya Q'eqchi communities living in the margins of protected areas in Guatemala In documenting the cultural aspects of landscape the study explores the coherence of diverse expressions of indigenous knowledge It intends to remind of cultural values and beliefs closely tied to subsistence activities and ritual practices that define local perceptions of the natural environment The basic idea is to illustrate that there are different ways of knowing and reasoning seeing and endowing the world with meaning which include visible material and invisible interpretative understandings These tend to be underestimated issues in international debates and may provide an alternative approach upon which conservation initiatives responsive to the needs of the humans involved should be based on

The Power of Words in International Relations

Charlotte Epstein, 2008-10-03 The role of discursive power in shaping international relations analyzed through the lens of whaling politics In the second half of the twentieth century worldwide attitudes toward whaling shifted from widespread acceptance to moral censure Why Whaling once as important to the global economy as oil is now had long been uneconomical Major species were long known to be endangered Yet nations had continued to support whaling In The Power of Words in International Relations Charlotte Epstein argues that the change was brought about not by changing material interests but by a powerful anti whaling discourse that successfully recast whales as extraordinary and intelligent endangered mammals that needed to be saved Epstein views whaling both as an object of analysis in its own right and as a lens for examining discursive power and how language materiality and action interact to shape international relations By focusing on discourse she develops an approach to the study of agency and the construction of interests that brings non state actors and individuals into the analysis of international politics Epstein analyzes the society of whaling states as a set of historical practices where the dominant discourse of the day legitimated the killing of whales rather than their protection She then looks at this whaling world s mirror image the rise from the political margins of an anti whaling discourse which orchestrated one of the first successful global environmental campaigns in which saving the whales ultimately became shorthand for saving the planet Finally she considers the continued dominance of a now taken for granted anti whaling discourse including its creation of identity categories that align with and sustain the existing international political order Epstein s synthesis of discourse power and identity politics brings the fields of international relations theory and global environmental politics into a fruitful dialogue that benefits both Us, Relatives Nurit Bird-David, 2017-02-14

Anthropologists have long looked to forager cultivator cultures for insights into human lifeways But they have often not been attentive enough to locals horizons of concern and to the enormous disparity in population size between these groups and other societies Us Relatives explores how scalar blindness skews our understanding of these cultures and the debates they inspire Drawing on her long term research with a community of South Asian foragers Nurit Bird David provides a scale sensitive ethnography of these people as she encountered them in the late 1970s and reflects on the intellectual journey that led her to new understandings of their lifeways and horizons She elaborates on indigenous modes of being many that have been eclipsed by scale blind anthropology which generally uses its large scale conceptual language of persons relations and ethnic groups for even tiny communities Through the idea of pluripresence Bird David reveals a mode of plural life that encompasses a diversity of humans and nonhumans through notions of kinship and shared life She argues that this mode of belonging subverts the modern ontological touchstone of imagined communities rooted not in sameness among dispersed strangers but in intimacy among relatives of infinite diversity
