to fight or run away but once the danger has passed our bodies return to balance In today s complex society we are involved with situations that continually cause frustration anger insecurities impatience etc Unless we can control this response we get the same fight flight reaction as we get from danger except in a reduced degree But the body does not return to balance because we are continually faced with a new crisis or problem This could go on hour after hour and day after day The deleterious effect of this mild physiological response over time causes the problems the afflictions of civilization one of which is heart disease It is possible to cope with all this from both a physiological and practical perspective Physiologically we need to use the relaxation response and practically we need to manage and organize our chaotic lives Exercise and nutrition will help us cope with stress Combining the best of all three will give us the best chance of living a healthy lifestyle     The Compassionate Mind Approach to Managing Your Anger Russell Kolts,2012-01-19 We can all get angry from time to time but when it gets out of hand it can have a serious impact on many aspects of our lives As well as having an impact on our physical and mental health and our ability to engage in healthy relationships it can also potentially have an enormous impact on society The media is rife with stories of domestic violence tragic stories of shaken babies road rage incidents and bullying Mounting evidence suggests that all this anger can be harmful to us in a number of different ways As well as the enormously damaging impact chronic anger can have on our relationships with other people it is being linked to health problems such as cardiovascular disease and irritable bowel syndrome IBS and mental illnesses such as depression and post traumatic stress disorder PTSD This invaluable self help guide will enable the reader to recognise their personal anger problems gain an understanding of what lies behind their anger and use techniques based on Compassion Focused Therapy CFT to deal with their anger more effectively CFT was initially developed by Professor Paul Gilbert author of The Compassionate Mind to treat those with high levels of self criticism It uses the proven research based techniques of CBT and other therapies with a special focus on the importance of developing inner compassion in order to alleviate feelings of shame develop a more balanced outlook and promote resilience It incorporates elements of mindfulness and Tibetan Buddhism with recent research on human development and studies of the brain It is increasingly used to treat a wide range of emotional and psychological problems including depression overeating shyness trauma anxiety and anger     Mastering Emotional Intelligence:
