European Communications Law and Technological Convergence Pablo Ibáñez Colomo,2011-12-14 This book presents a thorough critical examination of the European regulatory reaction to technological convergence tracing the explicit and implicit mechanisms through which emerging concerns are incorporated into regulation and competition law and then goes on to identify the patterns that underlie these responses so as to establish the extent to which the issues at stake and the implications of intervention are fully understood and considered by authorities Focusing on conflict points areas of tension inevitably arising among overlapping regimes the analysis covers such elements as the

following the provision of multiple play services the advent of convergent devices the interchangeability of transmission networks subscription based pay television services the diversification of television services such as on demand and niche theme channels the relative scarcity of premium content the migration of television content with cultural and social relevance to pay television and the emergence of bottleneck segments in the communications value chain Endorsing the adjustment of existing rules to meet pluralist objectives the author outlines a single coherent regulatory approach He shows how a careful analysis of the implications of technological convergence helps to solve conflicts between regimes Specifically the analysis addresses the level national or EU at which particular regulatory responses should emerge the objectives guiding action and the tools through which these objectives may be pursued These conclusions command the attention of policymakers regulators and lawyers active in the ongoing development of communications law Innovation Policy and Governance in High-Tech Industries Johannes Bauer,Achim Lang,Volker Schneider,2012-01-05 The book examines the conditions for successful high technology policy from theoretical and empirical perspectives It enhances the predominant national systems of innovation approach to innovation policy with concepts based on new developments in the governance of complex systems and processes The conceptual framework of complex networks and systems is used to examine national policy approaches in countries that have created environments conducive to high technology industries as well as individual high technology sectors such as biotechnology alternative energy and aerospace Theoretical and empirical contributions are synthesised into lessons for high tech policy and further research The Digital Economy Edward J. Christian Wernick, 2007-09-25 Most network industries throughout Europe are subject to sector specific regulation with large impact on market structures and results. Consequently questions related to regulatory designs and their effects on market outcomes become more and more important in business and politics as well as in scholarly research. Concentrating on Germany and the UK, Christian Wernick provides the reader with insights on the effects of different regulatory strategies which take place under a common European regulatory framework. Combining theoretical analyses and empirical material, a sophisticated and balanced picture on the coherences between regulation and investment behaviour in Germany's and the UK's broadband markets is presented. Youth Culture and Net Culture: Online Social Practices Dunkels, Elza, Franberg, Gun-Marie, Hallgren, Camilla, 2010-12-31 Discusses the complex relationship between technology and youth culture while outlining the details of various online social activities.

Competition Law and Regulation of the EU Electronic Communications Sector Liyang Hou, 2012-09-01 This book brings satisfying definition and clarity to this field at last. Exploring the substantive differences between competition law and sector specific regulation after the methodological integration, it presents the first detailed analysis of the many hundreds of notifications and Commission letters generated under the Article 7 procedure, identifying the most relevant cases dealing with market definition, market power and remedies. It compares these decisions with relevant competition law cases and highlights elements with a bearing on sector specific regulation. It also offers hugely valuable guidance through the vast amount of documents in the Commission's CIRCA database. Topics and issues raised include the following: definition of product markets, delineation of geographic markets, including sub-national different practices in relation to assessing single market power and collective market power and competition problems such as refusal to deal, margin squeeze, non-price discrimination and excessive pricing. There can be little doubt that this is the new reference point for researchers and practitioners in this domain. By systematically categorizing the concepts and legal criteria and building a solid theoretical framework on the intersection of competition law and sector specific regulation, the author has created a resource that is sure to be welcomed by all those involved in regulation of electronic communications markets and network industries: in general, academic scholars, telecommunications regulators at the EU and Member State levels, competition authorities, law firms specializing in IT communications law, practitioners in IT and telecommunications companies and consultants in the sector. The book will also prove very useful for scholars and practitioners in other parts of the world interested in comparing the EU system with their own.
