Grandly Told Tales The Donahues Of Solebury:

Grandly Told Tales Joe Doherty, 2005-07-01 This book Grandly Told Tales and The Donahue s of Solebury opens up depicting a cynical man living alone in the Bronx New York City Although not at odds with the human race he has developed his own sense of right and wrong but pretty much leaves humanity alone He is much too guarded against human relations and covets his alone ness with his dog Lucy far too much To be totally honest here that is a true depiction of who I was and where I was at the time To be more if not brutally honest with this cathartic attempt at making you like me I eventually moved from the Bronx into a very small cabin in upstate New York That is where I first started to write this book and from that place I find myself where I am today The hero of the book is Joe Donahue an ex Marine who has seen too much lived too long suffered a bit and regrettably has done his share of not so good deeds in life He is retired after thirty years of construction work has a disability income from the VA and social security income He has just enough money to get by so he takes daily work daily pay jobs every now and then to make ends meet He drinks too much smokes too much and enjoys laughing at himself about his screwy diet of eggs n beer for breakfast His social life is zero and his only interests are refurbishing his house and reading I guess that what I just said is pretty much in line with the truth except for the fact that I did not go to the war zone in Vietnam So that you know where my heart is I did volunteer to go I will forever salute those compatriots of mine who did not come home and I will never forget them Semper Fi I wrote this book because I always wanted to be the man that you will find in these pages To some degree perhaps I am already him When I peer deeply into my soul however I know that I lack many of the good character traits that I have bestowed upon our hero Joe Donahue I think you should know further that I lack the deleterious character traits that he has as well Sadly I must admit to first hand knowledge about much of the unsavory shenanigans that you will find in this story but I guess I am one of the lucky ones I m alive I am uniquely qualified to write this story and I have the scars to prove it This is a good vs evil tale that depicts situations woven around a story line of despair leading to hand clapping victory for the good guys In it I seek to entertain the reader with romance high intrigue mystery and globetrotting adventure Our hero emerges victorious but not without paying a price In short this is a rags to riches story the frog that would be king and yes maybe even a little bit of the prince and the pauper too I enjoyed writing it but please know that I resided in the land known as isolation while living it It is not a good place to hang your hat I hope you enjoy reading my heart Joe Doherty
