Grave Choices:

Grave Goods Anwen Cooper, Duncan Garrow, Catriona Gibson, Melanie Giles, Neil Wilkin, 2021-12-22 Britain is internationally renowned for the high quality and exquisite crafting of its later prehistoric grave goods c 4000 BC to AD 43. Many of prehistoric Britain's most impressive artefacts have come from graves. Interred with both inhumations and cremations, they provide some of the most durable and well preserved insights into personal identity and the prehistoric life course yet they also speak of the care shown to the dead by the living and of people's relationships with things. Objects matter. This book's title is an intentional play on words. These are objects in burials but they are also goods, material culture that must be taken seriously. Within it we outline the results of the first long term large scale investigation into grave goods during this period which enables a new level of understanding of mortuary practice and material culture throughout this major period of technological innovation and social transformation. Analysis is structured at a series of different scales ranging from macro scale patterning across Britain to regional explorations of continuity and change to site specific histories of practice to micro scale analysis of specific graves and the individual objects and people within them. We bring these different scales of analysis together in the first ever book focusing specifically on objects and death in later prehistoric Britain. Focusing on six key case study regions the book innovatively synthesises antiquarian reports, research projects and developer funded excavations. At the same time it also engages with and develops a number of recent theoretical trends within archaeology including personhood, object biography and materiality ensuring that it will be of relevance right across the discipline. Its subject matter will also resonate with those working in anthropology, sociology, museology and other areas where death, burial and the role of material culture in people's lives are key contemporary issues.

The Burial Record of Prehistoric Liangshan in Southwest China Anke Hein, 2016-12-13 This book proposes a new model and scheme of analysis for complex burial material and applies it to the prehistoric archaeological record of the Liangshan region in Southwest China that other archaeologists have commonly given a wide berth regarding it as too patchy, too inhomogeneous and overall too unwieldy to work with. The model treats burials as composite objects considering the various elements separately in their respective life histories. The application of this approach to the rich and diverse archaeological record of the Liangshan region serves as a test of this new form of analysis. This volume thus pursues two main aims: to advance the understanding of the archaeology of the immediate study area which has been little examined and to present and test a new scheme of analysis that can be applied to other bodies of material.

Archaeologists excavating burials often find that they are not the first to disturb the remains of the dead Graves from many periods frequently show signs that others have been digging and have moved or taken away parts of the original funerary assemblage Displaced bones and artefacts traces of pits and damage to tombs or coffins can all provide clues about post burial activities The last two decades have seen a rapid rise in interest in the study of post depositional practices in graves which has now developed into a new subfield within mortuary archaeology This follows a long tradition of neglect with disturbed graves previously regarded as interesting only to the degree they revealed evidence of the original funerary deposit This book explores past human interactions with mortuary deposits delving into the different ways graves and human remains were approached by people in the past and the reasons that led to such encounters The primary focus of the volume is on cases of unexpected interference with individual graves soon after burial re encounters with human remains not anticipated by those who performed the funerary rites and constructed the tombs However a first step is always to distinguish these from natural and accidental processes and methodological approaches are a major theme of discussion Interactions with the remains of the dead are explored in eleven chapters ranging from the New Kingdom of Egypt to Viking Age Norway and from Bronze Age Slovakia to the ancient Maya Each discusses cases of re entries into graves including desecration tomb re use destruction of grave contents as well as the removal of artefacts and human remains for reasons from material gain to commemoration symbolic appropriation ancestral rites political chicanery and retrieval of relics The introduction presents many of the methodological issues which recur throughout the contributions as this is a developing area with new approaches being applied to analyze post depositional processes in graves Burial and Memorial in Late Antiquity, 2024-10-02 Burial and Memorial explores funerary and commemorative archaeology A D 284 650 across the late antique world This first volume includes an overview of research and papers exploring bioarchaeology mortuary rituals mausolea and funerary landscapes It considers the sacralisation of tombs the movements of relics and the political significance of cemeteries The nature and fate of statue monuments is explored as memorials to individuals Authors also compare the destruction or preservation of tombs in relation to other buildings Finally the city itself is considered as a place of collective memory where meanings were long maintained via a study of spoliation Administrative Ethics and

Executive Decisions Chad B. Newswander, 2017-10-02 As first responders to public problems administrators must survey situations identify solutions and occasionally make executive decisions that are binding upon the government as a whole The ability for administrators to assert claims that orient the government in a particular direction is not only powerful but it can also be problematic and even dangerous For administrators the tension between moving in a spirited way and remaining sensible is a problem of how to exercise one's discretion especially in the U S context which demands that both be considered and actualized In dealing with these competing expectations Chad B Newswander analyzes how administrators can incorporate executive legislative and judicial tendencies to help them handle the problem of discretion Expanding the thinking of the constitutional school of public administration thought Administrative Ethics and Executive Decisions is a theoretically grounded and empirically rich study of how administrators incorporate a constitutional ethos to handle the problem of discretion

Deathscapes James D. Sidaway, 2016-05-13 Death is at once a universal and everyday but also an extraordinary experience in the lives of those affected Death and bereavement are thereby intensified at and frequently contained within certain sites and regulated spaces such as the hospital the cemetery and the mortuary However death also affects and unfolds in many other spaces the home public spaces and places of worship sites of accident tragedy and violence Such spaces or Deathscapes are intensely private and personal places while often simultaneously being shared collective sites of experience and remembrance each place mediated through the intersections of emotion body belief culture society and the state Bringing together geographers sociologists anthropologists cultural studies academics and historians among others this book focuses on the relationships between space place and death bereavement in western societies Addressing three broad themes the place of death the place of final disposition and spaces of remembrance and representation the chapters reflect a variety of scales ranging from the mapping of bereavement on the individual or in private domestic space through to sites of accident battle burial cremation and remembrance in public space The book also examines social and cultural changes in death and bereavement practices including personalisation and secularisation Other social trends are addressed by chapters on green and garden burial negotiating emotion in public private space remembrance of violence and disaster and virtual space A meshing of material and more than representational approaches consider the nature culture economy and politics of Deathscapes what are in effect some of the most significant places in human society

The Quadrant Puzzles Shankar Menon, This piece of fiction may at first disturb those singularly pursuing success for it lays bare their identities and the nature of their personal relationships However by the end of the book there would clearly appear comfort and redemption A novel that defies genres it is about how unabashed opportunity creations lead to Orwellian outcomes This is a must read for a beleaguered market civilization This book has its share of heroes and villains But in the end there is a universal triumph for every human being A novel of immense reconciliation It has the power to heal the earth and the human heart Here is a bold attempt to synthesize philosophy and everyday living the east and the west reason and harmony and finally truth and beauty A few excerpts from the book My heart raced as she sat beside me Her soft reassuring

Dameron,2013-05-27 By the early fourteenth century the city of Florence had emerged as an economic power in Tuscany surpassing even Siena which had previously been the banking center of the region In the space of fifty years during the lifetime of Dante Alighieri 1265 1321 Florence had transformed itself from a political and economic backwater scarcely keeping pace with its Tuscan neighbors to one of the richest and most influential places on the continent While many historians have focused on the role of the city s bankers and merchants in achieving these rapid transformations in Florence and Its Church in the Age of Dante George W Dameron emphasizes the place of ecclesiastical institutions communities and religious traditions While by no means the only factors to explain Florentine ascension no account of this period is complete without considering the contributions of the institutional church In Florence economic realities and spiritual yearnings intersected in mysterious ways A busy grain market on a site where a church once stood for instance remained a sacred place where many gathered to sing and pray before a painted image of the Virgin Mary as well as to conduct business At the same time religious communities contributed directly to the economic development of the diocese in the areas of food production fiscal affairs and urban development while they also provided institutional leadership and spiritual guidance during a time of profound uncertainty Addressing such issues as systems of patronage and jurisdictional rights Dameron portrays the working of the rural and urban church in all of its complexity Florence and Its Church in the Age of Dante fills a major gap in scholarship and will be of particular interest to medievalists church historians and Italianists

The Place of the Dead Bruce Gordon, Peter Marshall, 2000-01-28 This volume of essays provides a comprehensive treatment of a very significant component of the societies of late medieval and early modern Europe the dead It argues that to contemporaries the placing of the dead in physical spiritual and social terms was a vitally important exercise and one which often involved conflict and complex negotiation The contributions range widely geographically from Scotland to Transylvania and address a spectrum of themes attitudes towards the corpse patterns of burial forms of commemoration the treatment of dead infants the nature of the afterlife and ghosts Individually the essays help to illuminate several current historiographical concerns the significance of the Black Death the impact of the protestant and catholic Reformations and interactions between elite and popular culture Collectively by exploring the social and cultural meanings of attitudes towards the dead they provide insight into the way these past societies understood themselves
