The Global Politics of Contemporary Travel Writing Debbie Lisle, 2006-11-02 To what extent do best selling travel books such as those by Paul Theroux Bill Bryson Bruce Chatwin and Michael Palin tell us as much about world politics as newspaper articles policy documents and press releases Debbie Lisle argues that the formulations of genre identity geopolitics and history at work in contemporary travel writing are increasingly at odds with a cosmopolitan and multicultural world in which everybody travels Despite the forces of globalization common stereotypes about foreignness continue to shape the experience of modern travel The Global Politics of Contemporary Travel Writing is concerned with the way contemporary travelogues engage with and try to resolve familiar struggles about global politics such as the protection of human rights the promotion of democracy the management of equality within multiculturalism and the reduction of inequality This is a thoroughly interdisciplinary book that draws from international relations literary theory political theory geography anthropology and history

Force of Habit Jonas Frykman, Orvar Löfgren, 1996 This work examines customs and habits such as crayfish parties Christmas celebrations and graduation rituals The focus is not on the traditions as such instead they provide a starting point for analyses of how the experiences of everyday life are manifested in a visible cultural garb The text shows how many rituals serve to release people from the bonds of tradition usually by creating a special cultural arena Yet it also examines the ways in which habits and customs tacitly coerce thoughts sometimes drawing attention to fundamental social and moral values but just as often acting as impediments to reflection The contributors try to see how some features of everyday cultural identity can be easily replaced while others may persist tenaciously Bodytime Susanne Lundin, Lynn Åkesson, 1996
