Participatory Budgeting in Brazil Brian Wampler,2010-11 As Brazil and other countries in Latin America turned away from their authoritarian past and began the transition to democracy in the 1980s and 1990s interest in developing new institutions to bring the benefits of democracy to the citizens in the lower socioeconomic strata intensified and a number of experiments were undertaken Perhaps the one receiving the most attention has been Participatory Budgeting PB first launched in the southern Brazilian city of Porto Alegre in 1989 by a coalition of civil society activists and Workers Party officials PB quickly spread to more than 250 other municipalities in the country and it has since been adopted in more than twenty countries worldwide Most of the scholarly literature has focused on the successful case of Porto Alegre and has neglected to analyze how it fared elsewhere In this first rigorous comparative study of the phenomenon Brian Wampler draws evidence from eight municipalities in Brazil to show the varying degrees of success and failure PB has experienced He identifies why some PB programs have done better than others in achieving the twin goals of ensuring governmental accountability and empowering citizenship rights for the poor residents of these cities in the quest for greater social justice and a well functioning democracy Conducting extensive interviews applying a survey to 650 PB delegates doing detailed analysis of budgets and engaging in participant observation Wampler finds that the three most important factors explaining the variation are the incentives for mayoral administrations to delegate authority the way civil society organizations and citizens respond to the new institutions and the particular rule structure that is used to delegate authority to citizens

Parenting the Custodial Grandchild Bert Hayslip, Jr., PhD,Patricia Kaminski, PhD,2008-03-24 Grandparents have long played important roles in the lives of their adult children and their grandchildren in our own as well as in many other cultures Yet it has only been in the last 3 or 4 decades that grandparents have received the kind of academic scrutiny that other family members especially mothers have been receiving a century or more This groundbreaking collection has targeted the essence of what occurs in the context of grandparents efforts at parenting their grandchildren as well as the nature of these interactions Indeed grandparent s views on the adequacy of their parenting skills and the nature of their relationships with their grandchildren are at the heart of many of the difficulties and satisfactions associated with the resumption of the parenting role in middle and later life and are of central importance in the lives and well being of both custodial grandparents and their grandchildren The volume which will be of vital interest to family counselors mental health practitioners educators school counselors social workers psychologists and social service providers approaches this issue from novel theoretical perspectives presents new empirical data and provides valuable suggestions for therapists who are treating grandparent grandchild dyads. It is methodologically diverse, relying upon case studies, empirical findings, and national datasets. Additionally, it incorporates longitudinal work which has been absent in research with grandparent caregivers to date. Most importantly, it defines new areas of understanding of custodial grandparents that are relevant to both researchers and practitioners, e.g., dealing with grief and loss, a focus on grandchildren, the interactional style of caregiving, parenting education, intergenerational ambivalence, and therefore should provide fertile ground for work regarding these issues which are so central to the lives of custodial grandparents and their grandchildren. Highlighted coverage includes intergenerational relationships, intergenerational transmission of values and their implications for parenting among custodial grandparents, the adjustments custodial grandchildren must make in the school system viewed from the perspective of school personnel, an assistant principal and school counselor, the experiences/perceptions of adult children raised by their grandparents, impact on relationships with grandparents and the parenting of their own children, the role of the adult parent in the context of grandparents raising grandchildren. Each of these chapters will be written from an applied practitioner perspective and stress the clinical implications of each issue.

Innovation in Public Transport Finance Shishir

Mathur, 2016-05-23 With all levels of governments currently and for the foreseeable future under significant fiscal stress, any new transit funding mechanism is to be welcomed. Value capture (VC) is one such mechanism which involves the identification and capture of a public infrastructure-led increase in property value. This book reviews four major VC mechanisms: joint development projects, special assessment districts, impact fees, and tax increment financing, all of which are used to fund transit in the United States. Through the study of prominent examples of these VC mechanisms from across the US, this book evaluates their performance, focusing on aspects such as equity, revenue-generating potential, stakeholder support, and the legal and policy environment. It also conducts a comparative assessment of VC mechanisms to help policy makers and practitioners to choose one or a combination of VC mechanisms. Although the book focuses on the US, the use of the VC mechanisms and the urgent need for additional revenue to fund public transportation are world-wide concerns. Therefore, an overview of the VC mechanisms in use internationally is also provided.

Review of the U.S. Department of Defense Air, Space, and Supporting Information Systems Science and Technology Program

National Research Council, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Department of Military Science and Technology, Committee on Review of the U.S.

Department of Defense, Air and Space Systems Science and Technology Program, 2001-09-05 Since the mid 1940s when Vannevar Bush and Theodore von Karman wrote Science: The Endless Frontier and Toward New Horizons respectively, there has been a consensus that strong Department of Defense support of science and technology (S/T) is important to the security of the United States. During the Cold War, as it faced technologically capable adversaries whose forces potentially outnumbered US forces, the United States relied on a strong defense S/T program to support the development of technologically superior weapons and systems that would enable it to prevail in the event of conflict Since the end of the Cold War the United States has relied on its technological superiority to maintain a military advantage while at the same time reducing the size of its forces Over the past half century creating and maintaining a technologically superior military capability have become fundamental to U S national security strategy and investment in S T has become a basic component of the defense budget In late 1998 Congress asked the Secretary of Defense to conduct a study in cooperation with the National Research Council NRC on the S T base of the U S Department of Defense DoD Congress was particularly concerned about areas of the S T program related to air systems space systems and supporting information systems Its concern was based on the Air Force s reduction of its S T program from the largest of the three military service programs to the smallest Congress also wanted to ensure that the Air Force maintained an appropriately sized S T workforce In late 1999 the Deputy Under Secretary of Defense for Science and Technology asked the NRC to conduct a study to explore these issues
