Grave Coffin:

Body Snatching Suzanne M. Shultz, 2005-03-10 Also called resurrectionists body snatchers were careful not to take anything from the grave but the body stealing only the corpse was not considered a felony since the courts had already said that a dead body had no owner Burking i.e. murder was the alternative method of supplying stiffs to medical schools it is covered here as well This book recounts the practice of grave robbing for the medical education of American medical students and physicians during the late 1700s and 1800s in the US why body snatching came about and how disinterment was done and presents information on efforts to prevent the practice a group of professional grave robbers and the European experience Inventorium Sepulchrale: an Account of Some Antiquities Dug Up at Gilton, Kingston, Sibertswold, Barfriston, Beakesbourne, Chartham, and Crundale, in the County of Kent, from A.D. 1757 to A.D. 1773 Bryan Faussett, 1856

Inventorium sepulchrale: an account of some antiquities... in the county of Kent, from A.D. 1757 to A.D. 1773, ed., with notes and intr. by C.R. Smith Bryan Faussett, 1856 Ribe 700-1050 Morten Søvsø, 2020-12-17 In 2006 Claus Feveile published Det lde Ribe The earliest Ribe launching the publication series Ribe Studier Ribe Studies The goal of that series was to make the core archaeological evidence from excavations in the town of Ribe between 1984 and 2000 accessible to the scholarly world and to give an account of Ribe's special status in the archaeological landscape of Denmark and northern Europe Ribe 700-1050 From Emporium to Civitas in Southern Scandinavia is volume 2 in Ribe Studies The main text here provides a comprehensive presentation and analysis of the archaeology of the town through to the end of the Viking Period Alongside that the book has a major topographical section which discusses West Jutland in this period and the connexions between Ribe and the hinterland of the town In addition a concluding chapter discusses the origin of towns in southern Scandinavia The Gardener's Magazine, and Register of Rural and Domestic Improvement, 1843 Romano-British Settlement and Cemeteries at Mucking Sam Lucy, Christopher Evans, 2016-11-30 Excavations at Mucking Essex between 1965 and 1978 revealed extensive evidence for a multiphase rural Romano British settlement perhaps an estate center and five associated cemetery areas 170 burials with different burial areas reserved for different groups within the settlement The settlement demonstrated clear continuity from the preceding Iron Age occupation with unbroken sequences of artefacts and enclosures through the first century AD followed by rapid and extensive remodeling which included the laying out a Central Enclosure and an organized water supply with wells accompanied by the start of large scale pottery production After the mid second century AD the Central Enclosure was largely abandoned and settlement shifted its focus more to the Southern Enclosure system with a gradual decline though the 3rd and 4th centuries although continued burial pottery and artefactual deposition indicate that a form of settlement continued possibly with some low level pottery production Some of the latest Roman pottery was strongly associated with the earliest Anglo Saxon style pottery suggesting the existence of a terminal Roman settlement phase that essentially involved an Anglo Saxon community Given recent revisions of the chronology for the early Anglo Saxon period this casts an intriguing light on the transition with radical implications for understandings of this period Each of the cemetery areas was in use for a considerable length of time Taken as a whole Mucking was very much a component place complex it was its respective parts that fostered its many cemeteries whose diverse rites reflect the variability and roles of the settlement s evidently varied inhabitants

The Development of Royal Funerary Cult at Abydos Laurel Bestock, 2009 Two of the most characteristic aspects of ancient Egyptian culture kingship and a great attention to death were present from a very early age The first kings to rule all of Egypt came to power in approximately 3000 B C and the same kings were the first to have monumental tombs and funerary temples built These early royal mortuary temples in particular are quite enigmatic but the recent discovery of two previously unknown monuments at the site of Abydos is shedding new light on their development and use Most surprisingly these temples are from the same reign suggesting that members of the royal family in addition to the king might have received funerary cult in the early First Dynasty This study documents the excavation of these two temples their provision for the dedication of offerings and the sacrificial burials that surrounded them It sets these monuments within the framework of the rise of Egyptian kingship and cult examining both continuities and innovations in royal mortuary practice during this formative period of Egyptian civilization
