

UNDERSTANDING HYPERTENSION

What Is Hypertension?

Hypertension is the result of persistent high arterial blood pressure which may cause damage to the vessels and organs of the body. Often, individuals with hypertension have no symptoms, so it is often called a "silent killer." Hypertension is often diagnosed by a physician during a routine physical examination.

What Causes Hypertension?

There are two types of hypertension: Primary Hypertension and Secondary Hypertension. Primary Hypertension is the most common type and is caused by a combination of factors, including genetics, lifestyle, and age. Secondary Hypertension is caused by an underlying condition, such as kidney disease, thyroid problems, or certain medications. Both types can lead to serious health complications if not managed properly.

What Is Blood Pressure?

Blood pressure is the force of blood against the walls of the arteries. It is measured in two numbers: the systolic pressure (the top number) and the diastolic pressure (the bottom number). A normal blood pressure reading is 120/80 mmHg.

Healthy pressure = 120/80
Diastolic pressure = 80

Symptoms of Hypertension

Some people have NO SYMPTOMS of hypertension.

Others may experience the following symptoms:

- Headaches
- Blurred vision
- Chest pain
- Frequent urination at night

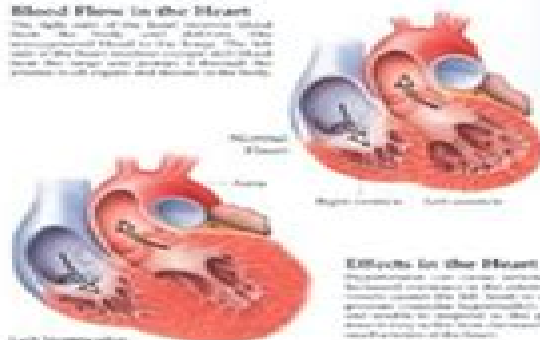

Effects in Blood Vessels

High blood pressure can damage the blood vessels, making them narrower and stiffer. This can lead to atherosclerosis, which is the buildup of fatty deposits in the arteries.

Blood Flow in the Heart

The left side of the heart pumps blood to the rest of the body. The right side of the heart pumps blood to the lungs. High blood pressure can strain the heart and lead to heart failure.

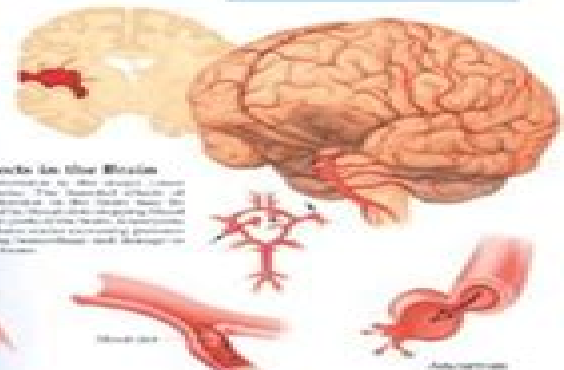

Effects in the Heart

Hypertension can cause the heart to pump harder, leading to an enlarged heart and heart failure. It can also lead to coronary artery disease, which is the buildup of fatty deposits in the arteries.

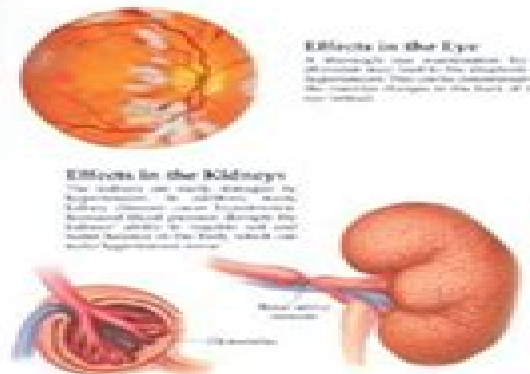

Effects in the Brain

Hypertension can lead to stroke, which is a sudden loss of blood flow to the brain. It can also lead to dementia, which is a loss of memory and cognitive function.

Effects in the Eye

Hypertension can lead to retinopathy, which is damage to the retina, the light-sensitive tissue at the back of the eye. It can also lead to glaucoma, which is a buildup of fluid in the eye.

Effects in the Kidneys

Hypertension can lead to kidney disease, which is damage to the kidneys. It can also lead to chronic kidney disease, which is a long-term condition that affects the kidneys.

Healthy Life Style Changes

There are several ways to lower blood pressure:

- Eating a healthy diet
- Exercising regularly
- Limiting alcohol and tobacco use
- Taking medication as prescribed
- Managing stress
- Getting enough sleep

It is very important to follow your doctor's instructions and to take any medication as prescribed.
