Parker, 2023-07-03 Over the coming decades every academic discipline will have to respond to the paradigm of more sustainable life practices because students will be living in a world challenged by competition for resources and climate change and will demand that every academic discipline demonstrate substantial and corresponding relevance This book takes as its point of departure that integrating a component of sustainability into a discipline specific course arises from an educator asking a simple question in the coming decades as humanity faces unprecedented challenges what can my discipline or area of research contribute toward a better understanding of these issues The discipline need not be future oriented an archaeologist for instance could incorporate into a course some aspects of sustainable archaeological practices in areas threatened by rapid climate change as well as examples of sustainable or unsustainable ways of living practiced by members of the long gone society under investigation This book also argues that courses about sustainability need to cross disciplinary boundaries both because of the inter relatedness of the issues and because students will require the ability to use interdisciplinary approaches to thrive through the multiple careers most of them will face The contributions to this book are presented under four sections Sustainability as a Core Value in Education considers the rationale for incorporating sustainability in disciplinary courses Teaching Sustainability in the Academic Disciplines presents eight examples of courses from disciplines as varied as agriculture composition engineering and teacher education Education as a Sustainable Practice reviews how the physical environment of the classroom and the delivery of instruction need themselves to reflect the values being taught The final section addresses the issues of leadership and long term institutional change needed to embed sustainable practice as a core value on campus     The Future of English in Asia Michael O'Sullivan,David Huddart,Carmen Lee,2015-10-05 This collection is unique in bringing together key thinkers on language and literature to discuss the future of English in Asia Many of the contributors are themselves responsible for important sub genres in English linguistics and literary studies and this collection gives them the opportunity to respond to each other directly The different chapters also respond to different contemporary debates and emerging trends and discourses that are hugely important for the future of English language teaching in schools across Asia This volume is also ground breaking in bringing English literary studies and Applied English Linguistics together in the contemporary Asian context The Future of English in Asia includes studies on the following subject areas Cultural Translation in World Englishes Multilingual Education English Futures and the function of Literature English Literary Studies in Japan and English and Social Media in Asia Well into this century it appears that it is still very difficult to know what to expect when it comes to the future of English The future of English will continue to be determined by complex local contexts As it has in other parts of the world the future of English in Asia will continue to rely on the proliferation of its transformations as much as its hegemonic status This volume reflects the widespread acknowledgement that whatever future English has will inevitably be shaped by its fate in Asia The collection will be a welcome resource for scholars and students of English linguistics English literary studies and topics related to the teaching of English in Asia     American Book Publishing Record ,2003     XXX

Modernism and Close Reading David James, 2020-04-30 The kinship between modernism and close reading has long been taken for granted But for that reason it has also gone unexamined As the archives timeframes and cultural contexts of global modernist studies proliferate the field's rapport with close reading no longer appears self evident or guaranteed even though for countless students studying literary modernism still invariably means studying close reading This authoritative collection of essays illuminates close reading's conceptual institutional and pedagogical genealogies as a means of examining its enduring potential David James brings together a cast of world renowned scholars to offer an account of some of the things we might otherwise know and need to know about the history of modernist theories of reading before then providing a sense of how the futures for critical reading look different in light of the multiple ways in which modernism has been close read Modernism and Close Reading responds to a contemporary climate of unprecedented reconstitution for the field it takes stock of close reading's methodological possibilities in the wake of modernist studies geographical literary historical and interdisciplinary expansions and it shows how the political ethical and aesthetic consequences of attending to matters of form complicate ideological preconceptions about the practice of formalism itself By reassessing the intellectual commitments and institutional conditions that have shaped modernism in criticism as well as in the classroom we are able to ask new questions about close reading that resonate across literary and cultural studies Invigorating that critical venture this volume enriches our vocabulary for addressing close reading's perpetual development and diversification from Arabic script to romanized print form in writing Malay the politicization of language and script reforms across Russia and Central Europe the role of Chinese debates about romanization in shaping global transformations in print media and the place of romanization between ancient Sanskrit models of language and script and contemporary digital forms of coding Each case study develops an analysis of Conrad's fiction read in comparison with such other writers as James Joyce Lu Xun Franz Kafka and Pramodya Ananta Toor The first sustained cultural study of romanization The K Effect proposes an important new way to assess the multi lingual and multi script coordinates of modern print culture

Twenty-first-century fiction Daniel Lea, 2016-11-21 This book offers readings of five of the most interesting and original voices to have emerged in Britain since the millennium as they tackle the challenges of portraying the new century Through close readings of the work of Ali Smith Andrew O Hagan Tom McCarthy Sarah Hall and Jon McGregor Daniel Lea opens a window onto the formal and thematic concerns that characterise a literary landscape troubled by both familiar and unfamiliar predicaments These include questions about the meaning of humanness in an age of digital intercourse about the need for a return to authenticity in the wake of postmodernism and about the dislocation of self from the other under neoliberal individualism By relating its readings of these authors to the wider shifts in contemporary literary criticism this book offers in depth analysis of important landmarks of recent fiction and an introduction to the challenges of understanding the literature of our time

Worlds of Hungarian Writing András Kiséry, Zsolt Komáromy, Zsuzsanna Varga, 2016-05-12 Worlds of Hungarian Writing responds to the rapidly growing interest in Hungarian authors throughout the English speaking world Addressing an international audience the essays in the collection highlight the intercultural contexts that have molded the conventions genres and institutions of Hungarian writing from the nineteenth century to the present They are mapping some of the ways in which a modern literature is produced by encounters with languages cultures and media external to its traditionally conceived boundaries But rather than viewing intercultural exchange as an external force the collection recognizes its enabling importance to the globalizing reception and circulation of Hungarian writing over the continuities and constraints implied by more traditional national narratives Worlds of Hungarian Writing posits intercultural exchange as the very substance of a literary culture Discussions of the politics of appropriation and translation of the impact of migr writers and critics and of the use of world literary models in genre formation complement studies of the fate of western leftist critical theory in post 1989 Hungary of the role of African American models in contemporary Roma culture and of the use of photography in late 20th century prose The volume spans a wide generic range from the achievements of such canonical 19th century critics and poets as J zsef Bajza and J nos Arany to neglected women authors translators such as Theresa Pulszky to modernist writers and critics like Antal Szerb and Gy rgy Luk cs and to the contemporary novelists P ter Esterh zy P ter N das and L szl Krasznahorkai Each essay is an original contribution to comparative literature and to the study of this Central European literature but is intended to be accessible to readers unfamiliar with its traditions Cosmopolitan Publics
