Global Malnutrition and Cereal Fortification James E. Austin, 1979 Abstract Fortification of cereals with vitamins and minerals or protein may contribute to better diets for undernourished peoples globally but the concept of a protein crisis remains controversial Some scientists contend that in less developed countries most undernutrition results from inadequate intake of the usual foods rather than of insufficient or poor grade protein Five categories of barriers to program implementation are explored with examples from the literature and results of field research Feasibility studies are reported for Guatemala Tunisia and Thailand Wheat Biofortification to Alleviate Global Malnutrition Om Prakash Gupta, Velu Govindan, Alexander Arthur Theodore, Henrik Brinch-Pedersen, Miroslav Nikolic, Victor Taleon, 2022-11-03 Catalogue of Research Literature for Development: Food production and nutrition, development and economics, education and human resources, health, selected development areas United States. Beriberi, White Rice, and Vitamin B Kenneth J. Carpenter, 2023-12-22 In this comprehensive account of the history and treatment of beriberi Kenneth Carpenter traces the decades of medical and chemical research that solved the puzzle posed by this mysterious disease Caused by the lack of a minute quantity of the chemical thiamin or vitamin B1 in the diet beriberi is characterized by weakness and loss of feeling in the feet and legs then swelling from fluid retention and finally heart failure Western doctors working in Asia after 1870 saw it as the major disease in native armed forces and prisons It was at first attributed to miasms poisonous vapors from damp soil or to bacterial infections In Java chickens fed by chance on white rice lost the use of their legs On brown rice where the grain still contained its bran and germ they remained healthy Studies in Javanese prisons then showed beriberi also occurring where white rather than brown rice was the staple food Birds were used to assay the potency of fractions extracted from rice bran and after 20 years highly active crystals were obtained In another 10 years their structure was determined and thiamin was synthesized Beriberi is a story of contested knowledge and erratic scientific pathways It offers a fascinating chronicle of the development of scientific thought a history that encompasses public health science diet trade expanding empires war and technology From the preface This is a medical detective story beginning with the investigation of a disease that has killed or crippled at least a million people and then following up clues that ranged much wider One outcome was the production of a synthetic chemical that we now nearly all of us consume in small quantities each day in our food The detectives had a variety of professions and spoke different languages Their work ranged from studying the health of laborers in a primitive jungle to the painstaking dissection of individual grains of rice under a microscope The integrated story of their struggles and successes culled from old volumes in scattered libraries forms the subject of this book In this comprehensive account of the history and treatment of beriberi Kenneth Carpenter traces the decades of medical and chemical research that solved the puzzle posed by this mysterious disease Caused by the lack of a minute quantity of the chemical World Bank Staff Occasional Papers ,1980 Protein and Energy Kenneth John Carpenter,1994-05-27 The author reviews the long standing debate over the relative merits of a high protein versus a low protein diet At a time when the concern has resurfaced that over consumption of protein in affluent societies may damage health this book provides a fascinating historical perspective Autoxidation in Food and Biological Systems M.G. Simic,Marcus Karel,2013-06-29 The material presented in this book deals with basic mechanisms of free radical reactions in autoxidation processes and antioxidant suppression of autoxidation of foods biochemical models and biological systems Autoxidation in foods and corresponding biological effects are usually approached separately although recent mechanistic developments in the biochemistry and free radical chemistry of peroxides and their precursors tend to bring these two fields closer Apparent ability of antioxidants in diets to reduce the incidence of cancer has resulted in scrutiny of autoxidized products and their precursors as possibly toxic mutagenic and carcinogenic agents Mechanisms of any of these effects have been barely addressed Yet we know now that free radicals as esoteric as they were only a few decades ago are being discovered in foods biochemical and biological systems and do play a role in the above mentioned causalities The purpose of the Workshop and the resulting book was to give a unifying approach towards study of beneficial and deleterious effects of autoxidation based on rigorous scientific considerations It is our hope that the material presented in this book will not only provide a review of the state of the art of autoxidation and antioxidants but also reflect the interaction which occurred during the Workshop between workers using model systems and food and biological systems
