Aparition D'une Identité Urbaine Dans L'Europe Du Bas Moyen Âge Marc Boone, Peter Stabel, 2000 Cheshire Nikolaus Pevsner, Edward Hubbard, 1971-03-01 For the architectural tourist one of Cheshire's greatest delights is the use of timber Chester whose famous rows with their upper walkways are unique in medieval Europe continues the timber framed tradition in its riotous Victorian buildings but glories also in its Roman past Between Design and Making Andrew Tierney, Melanie Hayes, 2024-07-08 The seventeenth and eighteenth centuries represent a high point in the intersection between design and workmanship Skilled artisans creative and technically competent agents within their own field worked across a wide spectrum of practice that encompassed design supervision and execution and architects relied heavily on the experience they brought to the building site Despite this the bridge between design and tacit artisanal knowledge has been an underarticulated factor in the architectural achievement of the early modern era Building on the shift towards a collaborative and qualitative analysis of architectural production Between Design and Making re evaluates the social and professional fabric that binds design to making and reflects on the asymmetry that has emerged between architecture and craft Combining analysis of buildings archival material and eighteenth century writings the authors draw out the professional pedagogical and social links between architectural practice and workmanship They argue for a process oriented understanding of architectural production exploring the obscure centre ground of the creative process the scribbled sketched hatched and annotated beginnings of design on the page the discussions arguments and revisions in the forging of details and the grappling with stone wood and plaster on the building site that pushed projects from conception to completion

Cirencester in the Cotswolds Kathleen Dolan Walsh, 1979 Leicestershire and Rutland Nikolaus Pevsner, Elizabeth Williamson, Geoffrey K. Brandwood, 1985-03-01 Pevsner wrote that Leicestershire is not a county of extremes and agreed that no other county in England surpasses Rutland for unspoiled quiet charm The large and the small Midland counties possess a varied and rewarding range of buildings Church architecture encompasses the classical Normanton preserved in remote isolation from the flood of Rutland Water to Market Harborough with its elegant medieval steeple and a fine group of Victorian churches in Leicester The major country houses include Belvoir Castle Staunton Harold and Burley on the Hill while the more modest homes of the late nineteenth century include notable work by Ernest Gimson Voysey and a garden city at Leicester by Parker Unwin Leicestershire also possesses fine modern buildings from its architecturally progressive schools to the justly renowned buildings of Leicester University dominated by Stirling Gowan's Engineering Building

Worcestershire Nikolaus Pevsner, 1968-03-11 The county stretches from the dramatic Malvern Hills on the eastern borders to the fringes of the Cotswolds on the west The rural areas are rich in sturdy cruck framed timber buildings discussed in an expert introduction and in village churches which can boast fine sculpture and fittings The priory of Great Malvern retains exceptional medieval stained glass and the medieval cathedral at Worcester has the tomb of King John and the chantry chapel of Prince Arthur Henry VIII's elder brother The City of Worcester has numerous fine buildings of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries while Great Malvern is of special interest as an early nineteenth century spa town The supreme example of Victorian grandeur is the eccentrically ambitious grounds and house of Witley Court now an evocative ruin

The Territorials, 1908-1914 Ray Westlake, 2020-01-31 The Territorials 1908-1914 is a unique comprehensive record of the part-time soldiers who made up the Territorial Force that supported the regular army in the years immediately before the outbreak of the First World War Previously information on the history and organization of these dedicated amateur soldiers has been incomplete and scattered across many sources but now in this invaluable work of reference Ray Westlake provides an accessible introduction to the Territorial Force and a directory of the units raised in each county and each town The origin, aims and organization of the Territorial Force are described as well as the terms of service, recruitment, equipment and training But the bulk of the book consists of details of over 600 Territorial units plus a comprehensive account of every city, town or village associated with them Essential information on all the infantry formations is supplied but also covered are the yeomanry, the artillery, the engineers, the Royal Army Medical Corps and the Army Service Corps Ray Westlake's historical guide of the Territorial Force, the forerunner of the present-day Territorial Army, will be of enduring value to military and family historians

The Cotswolds Anthea Jones, 1994 The Cotswolds constitute a distinctive region with a gentle, well-loved landscape The Roman and Anglo-Saxon settlement and the powerful influence of medieval lords of the manor all contributed to the pattern of hamlet and village, church and parish, the system of farming in open fields and to the creation of the market towns, one of the finest portraits of the region ever crafted Wilts Glos Standard
