Human-Computer Interaction and Management Information Systems:

Applications. Advances in Management Information Systems Dennis F. Galletta,Yahong Zhang,2014-12-18 Human Computer Interaction and Management Information Systems Applications offers state of the art research by a distinguished set of authors who span the MIS and HCI fields The original chapters provide authoritative commentaries and in depth descriptions of research programs that will guide 21st century scholars graduate students and industry professionals Human Computer Interaction or Human Factors in MIS is concerned with the ways humans interact with information technologies and tasks especially in business managerial organizational and cultural contexts It is distinctive in many ways when compared with HCI studies in other disciplines The MIS perspective affords special importance to managerial and organizational contexts by focusing on analysis of tasks and outcomes at a level that considers organizational effectiveness. With the recent advancement of technologies and development of many sophisticated applications, human centeredness in MIS has become more critical than ever before. This work focuses on applications and evaluations including special case studies, specific contexts or tasks, HCI methodological concerns, and the use and adoption process.

The Global-Local Interface and Hybridity Rani Rubdy, Lubna Alsagoff, 2013-12-02. The chapters in this volume seek to bring hybrid language practices to the center of discussions about English as a global language. They demonstrate how local linguistic resources and practices are involved in the refashioning of identities in a variety of cross cultural and geographical contexts and illustrate hybridity as an enactment of resistance and creativity. Drawing on a variety of disciplines and ideological perspectives, the authors use contexts as diverse as social media, Bollywood films, workplaces, and kindergartens to explore the ways in which English has become a part of localities and social relations in ways that are of significant sociolinguistic interest in understanding the dynamics of mobile cultures and transcultural flows.

We Are What We Sell Danielle Sarver Coombs, Bob Batchelor, 2014-01-15. For the last 150 years, advertising has created a consumer culture in the United States, shaping every facet of American life, from what we eat and drink to the clothes we wear and the cars we drive. In the United States, advertising has carved out an essential place in American culture, and advertising messages undoubtedly play a significant role in determining how people interpret the world around them. This three-volume set examines the myriad ways that advertising has influenced many aspects of 20th-century American society, such as popular culture, politics, and the economy. Advertising not only played a critical role in selling goods to an eager public but it also served to establish the now world-renowned consumer culture of our country and fuel the notion of the American dream. The collection spotlights the most important advertising campaigns, brands, and companies in American history from the late 1800s to modern day. Each fact-driven essay provides insight and in-depth analysis that general readers will find fascinating, as well as historical details and contextual nuance that students and researchers will greatly appreciate. These volumes demonstrate why advertising is absolutely necessary, not only for companies behind the messaging but also in defining what it means to be an American.

Human and Mediated Communication around the World Marieke de Mooij, 2013-10-07. This book is unique in the sense that it offers a comprehensive review and analysis of human communication and mediated communication around the world. This is one of the first attempts to do so in a systematic, comprehensive way. It challenges the assumption that Western theories of human communication and mass communication have universal applicability. It surveys the applicability of mass communication theories to other than Western cultures. The book explains the influence of culture on all forms of communication behavior, be it personal, mediated, or mass communication. It presents communication theories from around the world, incorporating a vast body of literature from Europe, Asia, Africa, and Latin America. This updated information on important international perspectives that includes both interpersonal and mediated communication is presently not readily available in other sources.

The book offers an integrated approach to understanding the working of electronic means of communication that are hybrid media combining human and mediated communication. These new media that are often presented as universal are even more culture bound than the traditional media. Transcultural Marketing Marye Tharp, 2014-12-17. Because American consumers transmigrate between social identities in expressing their values and affiliations, marketers must apply transcultural marketing methods and offer a cultural values proposition to build long term customer relationships. This unique book weaves these topics into profiles of 9 influential American subcultures currently shaping their members' marketplace choices.

Dynamics of International Advertising Barbara Mueller, 2011. The second edition of this great book brings a wealth of updates and insights into international advertising. Barbara Mueller has a knack of drawing you in so that you find yourself unable to put each chapter down. One of the great strengths of the book is that it provides context, be it historic, societal or marketing, along with considerable depth of knowledge. Douglas West, University of Birmingham. Advertising and Societies Katherine Toland Frith, Barbara Mueller, 2010. Now in its second edition, Advertising and Societies: Global Issues provides an international perspective on the practice of advertising while examining some of the ethical and social ramifications of advertising in global societies. The book illustrates how issues such as the representation of women and minorities in ads, advertising and children, and advertising in the digital era have relevance to a wider global community. This new edition has been updated to reflect the dramatic changes impacting the field of advertising that have taken place since publication of the first edition. The growing importance of emerging markets is discussed, and new photos are included. The book provides students and scholars with a comprehensive review of the literature on advertising and society and uses practical examples from international media to document how global advertising and global consumer culture operate, making it an indispensable research tool and invaluable for classroom use.

Business Models and ICT Technologies for the Fashion Supply Chain Rinaldo Rinaldi, Romeo Bandinelli, 2017-02-10. This book presents high quality original contributions on the fashion supply chain. A wide spectrum of application domains are covered: processing of big data coming from digital and social media channels; fashion new product development; fashion design; fashion marketing and communication strategy; business models and entrepreneurship; e-commerce and omni-channel management; corporate social responsibility; new materials for fashion product; wearable technologies. The contents are based on presentations delivered at IT4Fashion 2016, the 6th International Conference in Business Models and ICT Technologies for the Fashion Supply Chain, which was held in Florence, Italy, in April 2016. This conference series represents a targeted response to the growing need for research that reports and debates supply chain business models and technologies applied to the fashion industry, with the aim of increasing knowledge in the area of product lifecycle management and supply chain management in that industry.
