Global To Local Ecological Land Classification Thunderbay Ontario Canada August 14 17 1994:

Global to Local: Ecological Land Classification Richard A. Sims, Ian G.W. Corns, Karel Klinka, 2012-12-06 Ecological Land Classification ELC refers to the description of land resources at a range of spatial resolutions i.e. global to local and for a range of purposes or values. The emerging science of ELC is in fact a very carefully integrated blend of vegetation and earth sciences, climatology, cartography and ecology with a range of new technologies and methodologies including computer based geographic information systems, remote sensing and simulation modelling. This publication defines the current state of the art of ELC. It provides particular insight into the role of ELC in current and future forest resource planning and management and emphasizes its application and usefulness at various spatial scales for a variety of geographic locations and under a range of management scenarios/constraints. The book is an invaluable and substantial reference source about the current trends in ELC and will be of particular value to ecologists, foresters, geographers, resource managers, wildlife biologists, GIS and remote sensing specialists, educators and students.

Smart Buildings and Cities with Remote Sensing and GIS Shiv Mohan, Navneet Munoth, Neha Sharma, 2025-03-31 The built environment is undergoing a profound transformation driven by the integration of cutting edge geospatial technologies. Smart Buildings and Cities with Remote Sensing and GIS serves as a comprehensive guide to navigating this transformation and bridges the gap between traditional architectural and planning practices and the innovative possibilities of remote sensing (RS) and geographic information systems (GIS). The book demonstrates how architects, planners and decisionmakers can use GIS and RS to design smarter context aware and eco friendly urban spaces. It explores innovative approaches for architecture focusing on geospatial site analysis, net zero energy building designs, heritage preservation, innovative virtual campus planning methodologies and even futuristic concepts like habitat design on the lunar surface. Key features: Brings together contemporary geospatial technologies and their applications to address the challenges and opportunities in designing smart buildings and cities. Provides actionable solutions for professionals, researchers and policymakers. Includes global contributions that provide diverse perspectives on smart city and building applications. Highlights how geospatial data driven insights can revolutionize decisionmaking processes in urban planning and building design. The work is designed for postgraduate students and researchers in the departments of architecture, planning and geomatics, geoinformatics, software engineering.

Temporary Stream and Wetland Crossing Options for Forest Management, 1998 Discusses temporary options for crossing streams and wetland soils with forest harvesting and transportation equipment. Reviews the available literature on the environmental effects of temporary crossings. Provides an overview of regulations pertaining to temporary crossings for several jurisdictions in the Great Lakes Region.

Focus on International Joint Commission Activities, 1990 Ecological Stewardship William T. Sexton, 1999 Ecological Stewardship Robert C. Szaro, William T. Sexton, 1999 This text addresses six ecological themes: shifting public values, expectations and laws, social and cultural dimensions, humans as agents of ecological changes biological and ecological dimensions economic dimensions and information collection and evaluation The set includes a graphically illustrated summary volume synthesizing the key scientific and management findings and conclusions of the six topics The book is accompanied by a CD containing the full text of the three volumes in PDF format searchable by table of contents and keywords Conservation Biology Principles for Forested Landscapes Joan Voller, Scott Harrison, 2011-11-01 This book is intended to provide information to those who wish to interact with the landbase in an ecologically sustainable manner Practitioners charged with the administration of land based programs in industry and government will find the information presented useful It should also be a resource for many community groups involved in land use decision making Humans continue to use forests and make decisions about land use without perfect information Conservation Biology Principles for Forested Landscapes is intended to enable the improvement of planning and decision making processes by providing ecological information on issues of forest use Current approaches are not working Where information exists on new ecologically sustainable approaches practitioners should switch Where the information on a better approach is not yet available practitioners should replace the current inappropriate approach with a variety of flexible ones that offer the opportunity to change with new knowledge Meteorological and Geostrophysical Abstracts, 1997

Ecology and Management of Sitka Spruce N. Merle Peterson, Patrick Martin, 1997-08-01 Sitka spruce the largest of the world's spruces is an important component of British Columbia's coastal forests Its ecology gives it a special place in the sustainable management of the province's forests However in west coast forestry it is poorly known in comparison with its main coniferous companions Douglas fir western redcedar and western hemlock As an important international forestry resource it is crucial that Sitka spruce its ecology and the ecosystems in which it occurs be clearly understood by those who are involved with its management This book is the most recent major work on the ecology and management of Sitka spruce The authors describe how this fascinating tree reproduces grows and functions in its natural geographic range They discuss both the ecology of Sitka spruce and silvicultural questions such as original plantation spacing juvenile spacing and fertilization to accelerate the harvestability of second growth coastal spruce stands Sitka spruce derives its importance not only from its prominence as an international transportable genetic resource but also from its role in riparian systems and its biodiversity values Here in North America's west coast rainforest this magnificent tree illustrates the ecology of complex forest ecosystems and their cultural wilderness historic and economic values Information Report, 1985 Abstracts on Sustainable Agriculture, 1997 Ecology Abstracts, 1997 Coverage 1982 current updated monthly This database covers current ecology research across a wide range of disciplines reflecting recent advances in light of growing evidence regarding global environmental change and destruction Major areas of subject coverage include Algae lichens Animals Annelids Aquatic ecosystems Arachnids Arid zones Birds Brackish water Bryophytes pteridophytes Coastal ecosystems Conifers Conservation Control Crustaceans Ecosystem studies Fungi Grasses Grasslands High altitude environments Human
