specializing in regional economics and economic development Regionalism and Globalization in East Asia Mark Beeson, 2007-01-15 This book examines the distinctive character and evolution of political systems economic structures and security relationships of East Asia a dynamic region that will profoundly influence global developments in the twenty first century Mark Beeson places East Asian development in the unique historical circumstances that have underpinned its remarkable rise to prominence over the last few decades This multi dimensional analysis provides the basis for an assessment of current efforts to develop a unified East Asian region East Asia and Globalization Samuel S. Kim, 2000-10-25 This clear and timely book presents the first sustained and structured analysis of globalization in the East Asian context exploring the strategies used by East Asian countries to cope with the forces of globalization Eschewing both neoliberal hyperglobalization chants and neorealist globaloney castigation the authors integrate a broad conceptual framework with region and country specific case studies Specifically the book poses and addresses three major questions about East Asia s globalization First it identifies the range of contending conceptualizations of globalization that have underpinned the region s changing and contradictory views in the 1990s Second the book critically probes the discrepancy between promise and performance the myths and realities of East Asian globalization and the complex interaction of challenges and responses Third the authors evaluate the impacts and consequences of globalization for East Asia s political economic social cultural ecological and security development These questions clarify the often murky nature challenges responses and consequences of globalization especially in light of the Asian financial crisis and moves toward recovery

Globalisation and Economic Security in East Asia Helen Sharmini Nesadurai, 2006 What is the relationship between globalization and economic security Globalisation and Economic Security in East Asia is an incisive new engagement with this important question that uses detailed conceptual exploration and fresh empirical analysis Viewing traditional neorealist conceptions of economic security as overly narrow this new study suggests that any conception of economic security in the contemporary era needs to also pay close attention to the nature of global capitalism and the insecurities it generates for societies and individuals This uniquely open ended approach to conceptualizing economic security is supported by the East Asian experience The country case studies included here reveal that while economic security has largely been posed as one of ensuring sustainable economic growth and equitable social development particularly following the 1997 to 1998 Asian financial crisis other more realist conceptions of economic security have not become irrelevant This is also an exploration of whether and how national regional and multilateral institutions as well as non state regional mechanisms help policy makers meet the task of governing in the interests of economic security This book will be of great interest to all students and scholars of international relations international political economy of East Asia globalization and security studies East Asia, Globalization and the New Economy F. Gerard Adams, 2006-10-03 We are witnessing a transformation in the world economy as a result of the IT e business revolution Modern logistics based on cheap communication and transportation are shifting the locus of production and the international division of labour between the West and the lower wage countries of East Asia and similar changes are occurring within East Asia itself Looming over the entire picture is the colossus that is China and this transformation is making East Asia the manufacturing centre of the world economy Written by a recognized expert in the area of business economics this book analyzes these developments and evaluates their future impact on the development of East Asia and its role in the world economy The book examines the effect of the IT revolution globalization and the new economy on the development of East Asia The first book length treatment of IT e business in the region it questions whether the e business revolution will renew and sustain the rapid economic development of East Asia

Globalization and Regional Dynamics Wolfgang Klenner, Hisashi Watanabe, 2012-12-06 The writings by Japanese and German economists presented here originated against the backdrop of ongoing globalization processes and notable fluctuations in regional economic dynamics observable at the same time primarily in the East and South East Asian area. They provided the occasion for these writers to come to terms with globalization processes and in particular with the stabilizing and destabilizing elements at work in them. This is the basis for their investigation of the options provided by economics and economic policy for stabilizing an ever more tightly interwoven world economy. The regional focal points of the contributions are the East Asian realm and the European Union and the points of view are in every case both from the Japanese and the German side. Questions of international competition and mechanisms of the spread of the crisis in the wake of globalization processes lie at the centre of the analyses by Hisashi Watanabe and Willy Kraus. Hisashi Watanabe focusses on the relationship, an especially important one from the Japanese perspective between Japan and South Korea and takes up the problem of South Korea's demand that Japan should energetically promote its own transition to a service sector oriented society and withdraw from certain areas of manufacturing. This, it is argued, will grant Japan's Asian neighbours better chances for development and make a positive contribution to the economic stabilization of the region. Fairness, Globalization, and Public Institutions

Jim Dator, Richard C. Pratt, Yongseok Seo, 2018-03-31 Who benefits from the interconnected processes often referred to as globalization? Is it a relatively few people with most others either being harmed or at least not helped? Are the good things that globalization produces whatever they are widely shared? What processes lead us in one direction or another? This book examines a key dimension of globalization: its fairness. It investigates the meaning of and role fairness plays when public institutions are faced with the challenges and opportunities of globalization. Here a distinguished group of contributors including both academics and practitioners focuses on East and Southeast Asia but the relevance of the issues discussed extends well beyond these regions. They present a broad ranging examination of the intersections between fairness, globalization and public institutions. Contributors: Doug Allen, Walt T. Anderson, Ron Brown, Jim Dator, Jinping Ding, Christopher Grandy, Sohail Inayatullah, Yongduck Jung, Martin Khor, Yoshiko Kojo, Le Van Anh, Ivana Milojevic, Ryo Oshiba, Edgar A. Global Exposure in East Asia Dr Ming-Chang Tsai, 2015-07-28 In contrast to speculative sweeping literature on globalization, Global Exposure in East Asia grounds globalization theories in a detailed empirical analysis providing a systematic investigation of what until now have been grand narratives of huge global phenomena. This book presents a micro level explanation of globalization by examining individual global exposure and its influence in the values and perceptions of individuals, contending that individual and personal global experience or microglobalization is a key variable in understanding how modern mobile persons act and think in ways different from those who remain geographically immobile and constrained. Drawing on detailed empirical evidence from China, Japan, Taiwan and South Korea, Global Exposure in East

Asia explores the structures of global exposure and their influences on values and identities in contemporary East Asia. A rich comparative and grounded examination of modern theories of globalization, this book introduces an innovative perspective that highlights the significance of microglobalization in understanding quotidian lives in a context of ever expanding transnational exchanges and connectivities. As such, it will appeal to social scientists with interests in globalization, cosmopolitanism, mobility, migration, and transnationalism, national identity, and everyday life. East Asia Gennady Chufrin, 2006. Analyses modern tendencies in the development of regional economic cooperation in East Asia, which is considered by regional countries as their response to growing challenges of globalization. Economic Globalization and Asia Ramkishen S. Rajan, 2003. The term OC economic globalization (OCO) has been discussed extensively in the popular press by business executives and by policy makers all over the world. While academic economists have made some excellent contributions to specific technical aspects of economic globalization, there appears to be a need for economists to discuss the broader aspects of the issue in a more accessible manner. Failing this, the general debate will be informed only by the writings of non-economists. That is the motivation for this book, which is a collection of essays on various aspects of economic globalization in general, but with specific reference to Asia. Contents: Economic Globalization: Finance, Trade, and Taxation; Economic Globalization and Small and Open Economies: Finance, Trade, and Taxation; International Monetary and Financial Issues in East Asia; International Capital Flows and Regional Contagion; Boom and Bust in East Asia in the 1990s; Liquidity Enhancing Measures and Monetary Cooperation in East Asia; Rationale and Progress: Choosing the Right Exchange Rate Regime for Small and Open Economies in East Asia; International Trade Issues in Asia: The Nexus Between Trade Liberalization and Poverty in Asia; India's Decade Long Trade Reforms: How Does It Compare with Its East Asian Neighbours? with Rahul Sen; Singapore's Drive to Form Cross-Regional Trade Pacts: Rationale and Implications with Rahul Sen; International Trade in Infrastructural Services in East Asia; Telecommunications and Finance; International Tax Issues in Asia; Economic Globalization and Taxation: With Particular Reference to Southeast Asia, with Mukul Asher. Readership: Policy makers, businessmen, professionals, and others with an interest in international economic affairs and international economic policy. Global Production and Trade in East Asia Leonard K. Cheng, Henryk Kierzkowski, 2012-12-06. Global Production and Trade in East Asia focuses on the profound change that the traditional paradigm of production and international trade has undergone in the last two decades or so, as a result of worldwide trade and investment liberalization. This ongoing transformation has been both aided and stimulated by advances in telecommunications, transportation, and information management. The liberalization of trade and investment on the one hand, and advances in communications technology on the other, have further promoted global production networks in which vertical stages of final goods are fragmented across countries. International fragmentation of production, which enables international division of labor, not only in final products but also in vertically related components, is more evident than ever before. The book documents the process of international production fragmentation and trade in East Asian economies studies the mechanics of the process explores the theory behind the phenomenon and identifies important policy implications It focuses on production fragmentation and trade in East Asia because this is the part of the world where the phenomenon is most visible With contribution by well known international economics scholars from North America Europe and the Asia Pacific the book distinguishes itself with high global quality and rich regional content It achieves a fine balance between theory policy and empirical work This book will interest scholars of international trade foreign investment and international business regional specialists in East Asian economies policymakers and advisors in international economic relations and anyone else who follows important economic issues of globalization

Globalization, Consumption And Popular Culture In East Asia Tai Wei Lim, Wen Xin Lim, Xiaojuan Ping, Katherine Hui-yi Tseng, 2016-09-02 This book aims to provide comprehensive empirical and theoretical studies of expanding fandom communities in East Asia through the commodification of Japanese Korean and Chinese popular cultures in the digital era Using a multidisciplinary approach including political economy East Asian studies political science international relations concepts and history this book focuses on a few research objectives In terms of methodology it is an area studies approach based on interpretative work observation studies policy and textual analysis First it aims to examine the closely intertwined relationship between the three major stakeholders in the iron triangle of production companies consumers and states i e role of government in policy promotion Second it studies the interpenetration adaptation innovation and hybridization of exogenous Western culture with traditional popular cultures in North East Asia Third it studies the influence of popular cultures and how cultural products resonate with a regional audience through collective consumption contents reflective of normative values the emotive and cognitive appeal of familiar images and social learning as well as peer effect found in fan communities It then examines how consumption contributes to soft cultural influence and how governments leverage on its comparative advantages and cultural assets for commercial success and in the process augment national cultural influence These questions will be discussed and analyzed and contextualized through the case studies of J pop Japanese popular culture K pop Korean popular culture or Hallyu and Chinese popular culture including Mando pop and Taiwanese popular culture

Regional Strategies in a Global Economy René Haak, Dennis S. Tachiki, 2004 Both proponents and opponents of globalization assume it is a process that sweeps across national borders Indeed over the last twenty years the key features of globalization provide prima facie evidence for this conventional wisdom Dramatic developments in information and communications technology the rise of global companies and production networks the unstoppable internationalization of financial markets and the deregulation and privatization of service sectors are all important examples of how this process unfolds in its raw form Nevertheless the increase in regional economic activity is another striking feature of this process As multinational corporations extend their global reach regional networks also emerge in the global trading system Globalization therefore does not only mean a global convulsion of economies but could also lead to a spatial concentration of economic activity All through the 1990s and at the beginning of the new century East Asia experienced numerous structural changes leading to interesting market developments South Korea's rise to developed country status the integration of the Southeast Asian economies and the rise of China have made this region the manufacturing center of the global economy Considering the economic importance of Japan and the other East Asian nations in the world the crucial questions that arise include What are the linkages between the global strategies of multinational corporations and their regional business operations Why do subregional strategies emerge especially recently to take advantage of China as a production base and market Are the modern business practices in a multinational corporation's home country easily transferred to their overseas operations and are they readily absorbed by local employees Finally which strategic directions are Japanese American East Asian and European enterprises going in this important business area of the world To answer these questions this book takes a closer look at several structural features of the East Asian economy and the corporate and business strategies of multinational corporations The volume assembles up to date research by a number of European Australian and Japanese scholars and presents analysis of various business aspects of regional strategies in a global economy
