Literacy Research for Political Action and Social Change Mollie V. Blackburn, Caroline T. Clark, 2007 This book and its contributors all of whom view literacy research as explicitly political and potentially transformative provide images and approaches that show how work with in the local can and must be connected to global issues in order to effect political action Researchers and educators are urged to take activist stances that directly affect and address the needs of all people across lines of race class ethnicity sexuality and gender The book is organized into three parts each focusing on different aspects of literacy research for political action These include theoretical considerations and methodological approaches that support this work a reconsideration of the roles of participants as collaborators in this kind of literacy research and finally examples of projects specifically aimed at addressing global issues through local research for political action

Risk, Education and Culture Andrew Hope, 2018-01-18 In recent years education has become increasingly perceived as an area of risk A number of highly publicized incidents have heightened awareness of the potential dangers to be found in teaching institutions Although there is now a substantial conceptual literature on risk and the meaning of the risk society such ideas have not to date been rigorously applied to the educational sector The authors of this innovative volume address this gap discussing the relevance of risk discourses to educational processes They recognize that risk discourses themselves both academic and political do not necessarily relate to actual dangers within education and they examine the differences between the risk narratives of expert and layperson teacher and student practitioner and academic This book will greatly interest both sociologists and educationalists interested in the interaction between education and contemporary trends in society

Culture, Transnational Education and Thinking Niranjana Casinader, 2014-04-24 The notion of thinking skills as a key component of a 21st century school education is now firmly entrenched in educational policy and curriculum frameworks in many parts of the world However there has been relatively little questioning of the manner in which educational globalisation has facilitated this diffusion of thinking skills curriculum and pedagogy in a cultural context This book will help to redress such an imbalance in its critical assessment of the cross cultural validity of transplanting thinking skills programs from one educational system to another on an international scale Culture Transnational Education and Thinking provides an international comparative study of the intersection of three educational concepts culture education and thinking Drawing on case studies from Malaysia South Africa and Australia USA for the purposes of comparative analysis the book employs the context of an international school program in the teaching of thinking skills Future Problem Solving Program International The book explores the associations between Future Problem Solving educators their cultural background and their approaches to thinking evaluating the relevance of transferring thinking skills programs derived in one cultural framework into another The book also discusses the wider implications of these cross cultural comparisons to curriculum and pedagogy within schools and higher education with a particular emphasis on the teaching of multicultural school based classes and cross cultural understandings in teacher education and professional development This book will be of relevance to academics and higher education students who have an interest in the fields of cross cultural and intercultural understanding comparative studies in education and theories and practices of cognition as well as the development of tertiary and secondary curricula and associated pedagogies that specifically acknowledge the cultural diversities of both teacher and learner

In the Shadow of Neoliberalism: Thirty Years of Educational Reform in North America Liliana Olmos, Carlos Alberto Torres, Rich Van Heertum, 2011-09-10 Globalization has emerged as one of the key social political and economic forces of the twenty first century challenging national borders long established institutions of governance and cultural norms and behaviors around the world Yet how has it affected education the series explores the complex and multivariate ways in which changing global paradigms have influenced education democracy and citizenship from Latin America Europe and Africa to Asia the Middle East and North America It seeks to unearth how these changes have manifest themselves in daily classroom experiences for teachers and administrators the world over and how recent events might influence future change

The Development of Higher Education in the United Arab Emirates Daniel Kirk, 2010-03-10 The UAE sits astride an uncomfortable dilemma in terms of national development and international profile It seeks to be a regional and global power both economically and politically and to achieve this it needs to diversify and become less reliant on a workforce that is made up predominantly of expatriates many of whom are employed because they have a level of education unavailable among the general citizenry Alongside a rapid growth in public services and private commerce education is a stated national priority with the Ministry of Education setting out in its vision that education should achieve enduring development for the community The UAE higher education sector is growing at an astonishing rate. However the apparent dilemma results from the call for a rapid growth in educational provision alongside the desire to produce a functioning and accessible education system in a relatively short time frame. The UAE is a consumer of educational practice a nation that has a history of buying in the educational models and expertise it requires as opposed to the lengthier but possibly better suited process of building an indigenous education system from the ground up. Developing a truly indigenous and new system to fit the needs of neophyte states although laborious expensive and problematic does allow a nation to mold specifically the needs of the country with the educational systems developed. However the UAE through the model of borrowing systems and expertise was able to kick start the development of education in the country greatly decreasing the time needed to establish formal educational structures. Such a situation may open up questions as to the suitability and efficacy of a predominantly imported educational provision for the indigenous population. The UAE as a relatively new and emerging economy has the funds and support of the national leadership to actively pursue and seek educational systems and practices that will advance development and competitiveness. To exam how globalized structures influence education in the UAE and beyond there needs to be an understanding and awareness of the context in which the education sector functions today. As global economic forces and the labor needs of societies change then accountability control and governance of education becomes a contested area of public policy. However what can be seen is that education is gaining in prominence in the public policy arena with governments and politicians realizing that in order to be globally competitive education must produce a skilled and efficient national workforce placing education firmly in the realm of human capital theory and policy.

Culture Shock and Multiculturalism Edward Dutton, 2011-11-15. It used to be widely accepted amongst anthropologists that when they conducted fieldwork with foreign cultures they experienced something called culture shock. This book will argue that culture shock is a useful model for understanding an important part of human experience. However in its most widely known form the stage model culture shock has been heavily influenced by the same anti science latter day religiosity that has become so influential more broadly. Multiculturalism. This book will examine culture shock through the model of religion. It will show how the most well known model of culture shock so popular amongst business consultants expatriates international students and travelers has become a means of promoting and sustaining this replacement religion which includes everything from dogmatism and fervour to conversion experience. By so doing it will aim both to better understand culture shock and to show how it can still be useful if divorced from its implicitly religious dimensions to broadly scientific scholars. It will also suggest how anthropology itself might be stripped of its ideological infiltration and returned to the realm of science.

Understanding the International Student Experience Catherine Montgomery, 2010-01-15. Presents a contemporary approach to the experience of international students in Higher Education. Using empirical and qualitative data the book explores their social and cultural context and its impact on their learning experience.

China's Higher Education Reform and Internationalisation

Janette Ryan, 2011-03-07 Despite radical and fundamental reform of the Chinese higher education system very little is known about this outside China The past decade has seen radical reform of all levels of China's education system as it attempts to meet changing economic and social needs and aspirations this has included transformation of university curricula pedagogy and evaluation measures rapidly increasing joint research and degree programmes between Chinese universities and universities abroad and very large numbers of Chinese students studying at universities outside China This book describes the historical cultural intellectual and contemporary background and contexts of the reform and internationalisation of higher education in China It discusses these changes outlines the challenges posed by the changes for university administrators faculty researchers students and those working with Chinese academics and students in China and abroad and assesses the impact and evaluates the success of the changes Most importantly it considers how this mobility of people and ideas across educational systems and cultures can contribute to new ways of working and understanding between Western and Chinese academic cultures The book is a companion to Education Reform in China which focuses on reform at the early childhood primary and secondary levels      Education as a Political Tool in Asia Marie Lall, Edward

Vickers, 2010-06-30 This book offers a fresh and comparative approach in questioning what education is being used for and what the effects of the politicisation of education are on Asian societies in the era of globalisation Education has been used as a political tool throughout the ages and across the whole world to define national identity and underlie the political rationale of regimes In the contemporary globalising world there are particularly interesting examples of this throughout Asia ranging from the new definition of Indian national identity as a Hindu identity to contrast with Pakistan's Islamic identity to particular versions of nationalism in China Japan Singapore and Vietnam In Asia education systems have their origins in processes of state formation aimed either at bolstering self strengthening resistance to the encroachments of Western and or Asian imperialism or at furthering projects of post colonial nation building State elites have sought to popularise powerful visions of nationhood to equip these visions with a historical back story and to endow them with the maximum sentimental charge This book explores all of these developments emphasising that education is seen by nations across Asia as elsewhere as more than simply a tool for economic development and that issues of national identity and the tolerance or lack of it of ethnic cultural or religious diversity can be at least as important as issues of literacy and access Interdisciplinary and unique in its analysis this book will be of interest to scholars of political science research in education and Asian Studies      International Joint Double

Degrees and International Transitions in Higher Education Jan Katherine Bamford, 2020-07-31 This book explores the interplay between culture and pedagogy within the student experience of international joint double degree programmes The author posits that international higher education can be seen within a construct of mutuality with the experience of internationalisation being a driving force for the development of agency and cultural awareness This direct lived reality of experiencing cultural difference as part of the educational process presents an opportunity for the internationalisation of the self international joint double degrees provide an ideal vehicle for the development of knowledge and broadening of the mind Drawing together cultures of learning differing approaches to pedagogy and the international classroom this book argues that international joint double degrees constitute an active cultural engagement within a higher education context
