Excerpt from The Glory of the Trenches An Interpretation To You At Home Each night we panted till the runners came Bearing your letters through the battle smoke Their path lay up Death Valley spouting flame Across the ridge where the Hun s anger spoke In bursting shells and cataracts of pain Then down the road where no one goes by day And so into the tortured pockmarked plain Where dead men clasp their wounds and point the way Here gas lurks treacherously and the wire Of old defences tangles up the feet Faces and hands strain upward through the mire Speaking the anguish of the Hun s retreat Sometimes no letters came the evening hate Dragged on till dawn The ridge in Hying spray Of hissing shrapnel told the runners fate We knew we should not hear from you that day From you who from the trenches of the mind Hurl back despair smiling with sobbing breath Writing your souls on paper to be kind That you for us may take the sting from Death About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the destroyed seemingly secure values The literature that the First World War generated and continues to generate so many years later is enormous and addresses a multitude of cultural and social matters in the history of Canada and the war itself Although many scholars have brilliantly analyzed the literature of the war little has been done to catalog the writings of ordinary participants men and women who served in the war and wrote about it but are not included among well known poets novelists and memoirists Indeed we don't even know how many titles these people published nor do we know how many more titles were added later by relatives who considered the recollections or collected letters worthy of publication Brian Douglas Tennyson's The Canadian Experience of the Great War A Guide to Memoirs is the first attempt to identify all of the published accounts of First World War experiences by Canadian veterans *The Glory of the Trenches; An Interpretation.
