development of Canada s prairie West From 1878 when the first shipment of prairie grain went to international markets to 1929 when the Great Depression signalled the end of the wheat boom the role of hired hands changed dramatically Prior to

World War One hired hands viewed themselves and were treated in the rural community as equals to their farmer employers

Many were farmers in training informal apprentices who worked for wages so they could accumulate the capital and experience needed to secure their own free 160 acre parcels of land In later years as free lands were taken hired hands increasingly faced the hkehhood of remaining waged labourers on the farms of others They became agricultural proletarians

In this first full length study of labour in Canadian prairie agriculture during the period of settlement and expansion Cecilia

Danysk examines the changing work and the growing rural community of the West through the eyes of the workers themselves World War One was a catalyst in bringing into focus the conflicting nature of labour capital relations and the divergent aims of workers and their employers Yet attempts at union organization were unsuccessful because most hired hands worked alone and because governments assisted farmers by stifling such attempts The workers greatest form of workplace control was to walk off one job and find another Previously published by McClelland Stewart Legislation by Congress Urged by the American Farmer Joseph Taylor Robinson,1911 Monthly Review of the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics ,1918 Legislative Documents Iowa,1902 Contains the reports of state departments and officials for the preceding fiscal biennium Biennial Report Iowa.
