Optimization of Water Management in Polder Areas Preecha Wandee, 2005-06-16 The demand on land to produce food for urban development such as housing industry shopping areas infrastructure and also for recreation has increased during the history of mankind

This has resulted in such activities as the reclamation of swamps flood plains tidal areas and even lakes by impoldering Model simulations can be use to gain insight into the system behaviour of different land use and soil composition under temperate humid and humid tropic conditions The existing package OPOL based on a non steady model was further developed to the version OPOL5 for the simulation of hydrological conditions and optimization of the main components of water management systems in polder areas in the temperate humid and humid tropical zone This model reveals a system s behaviour as well as the effects of variation in the main components of the systems to the overall costs For example the designs of pumped drainage systems in polder areas can be optimized by varying the main components until the annual equivalent costs are minimum A GIS tool has been used to complement OPOL5 for the simulation of the real situation in an area with respect to land use damage topography and soil type The model package has been applied to two case studies one in the temperate humid zone namely the Netherlands and to Thailand in the humid tropical zone Climate Change and

Ancient Societies in Europe and the Near East Paul Erdkamp, Joseph G. Manning, Koenraad Verboven, 2021-11-05 Climate change over the past thousands of years is undeniable but debate has arisen about its impact on past human societies This book explores the link between climate and society in ancient worlds focusing on the ancient economies of western Eurasia and northern Africa from the fourth millennium BCE up to the end of the first millennium CE This book contributes to the multi disciplinary debate between scholars working on climate and society from various backgrounds The chronological boundaries of the book are set by the emergence of complex societies in the Neolithic on the one end and the rise of early modern states in global political and economic exchange on the other In order to stimulate comparison across the boundaries of modern periodization this book ends with demography and climate change in early modern and modern Italy a society whose empirical data allows the kind of statistical analysis that is impossible for ancient societies The book highlights the role of human agency and the complex interactions between the natural environment and the socio cultural political demographic and economic infrastructure of any given society It is intended for a wide audience of scholars and students in ancient economic history specifically Rome and Late Antiquity Agriculture In Third Wrl W. B.

Morgan, 2019-03-13 we do not yet seem to have realised that the exchange of products between countries in one part of the world but at different stages of development is no less natural and no less profitable for the various nations than the exchange of products which differ because they grow in different climates Thiinen Hall xg66 p 194 There have been few attempts to study agriculture within a spatial framework notwithstanding the quintessential importance of land as a production factor Land is most often treated as generalized environment although it could also be considered as social and economic space social because even the most crowded of farming communities has much greater distance between its basic social units than exist within an urban industrial agglomeration and economic because distances to markets to factor sources and to information must be overcome and frequently vary by type of market factor and information source Modem agricultural geography has been largely preoccupied with the development of techniques and with classification often as ends in themselves or with a geographical element consisting mainly of some general locational reference or regional description. Rarely has there been an attempt to identify a spatial structure associated with some particular agricultural enterprise or practice.

Coping with Changing Environments Beate Lohnert, Helmut Geist, 2018-12-17 First published in 1999. A collection of empirical research and theoretical reflection on the modelling of environmental change from a social perspective. The focus is on the endangered ecosystems in the developing world and examples are given from Asia, Africa and Latin America. After Regions at Risk Kaspersen et al 1995 UNO University Press it is the second compilation that focuses on regional empirical evidence with regard to Global Environmental Change. On a national and European level it gives an overview of regional studies coming from the first German Priority Programme on the Social Dimensions of Global Environmental Change. The introductory and concluding parts of the book reflect the strictly interdisciplinary approach of the research programme and form a step towards the understanding of human driving forces and responses to Global Change rooted in regional transformation processes. The book offers a source of information and theoretical guidelines for the newly evolving scientific community of Global Change Research including teachers, politicians and anyone involved in social and environmental policy and planning.

Introduction to Geography Arthur Getis, Judith Getis, Jerome Donald Fellmann, 2004. This market leading book introduces college students to the breadth and spatial insights of the field of geography. The authors' approach allows the major research traditions of geography to dictate the principal themes. Chapter 1 introduces students to the four organizing traditions that have emerged.

Agricultural Development Principles Robert D. Stevens, Cathy L. Jabara, 1988-09. What are the food and agricultural development problems facing Third World nations? Does current economic theory help accelerate growth? Does it foster useful development policies? This book addresses these and other questions to provide a wide ranging and thorough introduction to the theories, policies and practices aimed at increasing food production and agricultural development. Individual sections examine recent agricultural progress in developing nations including increased production and growing demand, the economic and social theory of agricultural development and sources of accelerated growth through biochemical and mechanical technologies and improved agricultural institutions. Rural financial markets, cooperatives and land reform are also examined. Later chapters focus on agricultural research and extension, agricultural marketing, trade, price policies and planning. A concluding chapter looks at new strategies for accelerating agricultural development. Past decades have seen an explosion of empirical research on Third World agriculture. This up to date comprehensive overview will interest not only students of agricultural development in the Third World but also professionals in government and international organizations.
