Fashion And Surrealism:

Fashion and Surrealism Richard Martin, 1987 Shows surrealistic paintings photographs clothing and accessories and discusses the art movement's affect on dress design window displays and advertising      Fashion and Surrealism François Baudot, 2002-06 Fashion and the Surrealist movement have had numerous affinities from the outset of the latter Beauty will be convulsive or will not be at all Andr Breton declared in the thirties a maxim that could serve as a motto for the world of haute couture And fashion the stuff of its creators dreams often is surreal in the true sense of the word a shoe turned into a woman's hat a glove with claw like gold fingernails a lobster dress The Surrealists picked bourgeois fashion apart at the seams and gave it a taste for scandale Today the genius of Salvador Dali Max Ernst and Ren Magritte continues to influence great coutiers such as Jean Paul Gaultier John Galliano and Serge Lutens      Fashion and Surrealism Richard Martin, 1987 Shows surrealistic paintings photographs clothing and accessories and discusses the art movement's affect on dress design window displays and advertising      Strange Glamour Victoria Rose Pass, 2011 This project examines the complex relationships between Surrealism and fashion between World War I and World War II Scholarship on art and fashion has typically understood fashion as being passively influenced by art or using art for the sake of profit I argue that far from being superficial and incidental to Surrealism fashion played an integral role in this artistic movement By engaging with art historical responses to Surrealism I have found new ways to understand a new fashion aesthetic in the 1930s which I call Strange Glamour I examine the development of this aesthetic and the relationship between fashion and surrealism by focusing on a series of key events I begin in chapter one with 1921 the year in which Coco Chanel launched her perfume Chanel No 5 and Marcel Duchamp created his perfume readymade Belle Haleine I compare the ways that Chanel and Duchamp questioned conventions of authorship in art and fashion through the molding of their public persona These figures instigated a new kind of relationship between the artist or designer and the work of art or garment in which both parts are crucial to making sense of the whole The second chapter focuses on 1927 the year that designer Elsa Schiaparelli created her first design a trompe l'oeil sweater that is directly linked with the Surrealists engagement with the uncanny This chapter also considers Man Ray's photographs of hats which illustrated an article by Tristan Tzara on subconscious expressions of sexuality in the everyday world in the Surrealist magazine Minotaure in 1933 Far from being automatic writing as Tzara describes I argue that these hats were the self conscious creation of Elsa Schiaparelli The 1931 Paris Colonial Exhibition and the 1937 exhibition La Mode au Congo at Galerie Charles Ratton frame the third chapter which considers the role of primitivism in Surrealism and fashion during these years particularly in relation to sexuality I examine the designs of French milliner Madame Agn's that were influenced by the 1931 exhibition and the unique hats made by American milliner Lilly Dach in response to a collection of hats she purchased from the Congo I also consider a unique group of photographs of the Congolese hats by Man Ray that were shown at the Ratton exhibition The fourth and final chapter examines the links between Schiaparelli's designs of the late 1930s the uncanny and André Breton's idea of convulsive beauty beauty which was meant to shock I consider Schiaparelli's designs in the context of Surrealist objects and examine the important and often neglected links between Surrealist and fashion exhibitions in the 1930s My dissertation demonstrates that an examination of the relationship between fashion and Surrealism can enrich our understanding of this period in art and fashion and can also illuminate larger theoretical issues positioned at their intersection Through a rigorous engagement with archival sources I trace the historical relationships between fashion and Surrealism and point to the continued importance of collaboration dialogue and influence between these realms

Fashion and Psychoanalysis Alison Bancroft, 2012-02-28 In this innovative new book Alison Bancroft re-examines significant moments in twentieth century fashion history through the focal lens of psychoanalytic theory Her discussion centres on studies of fashion photography haute couture queer dressing and fashion art in an attempt to shed new light on these key issues According to Bancroft problems of subjectivity are played out through fashion in the public arena and not just in the dark unknowable unconscious mind The question of what can be said and what can only be experienced and how these two issues may be reconciled become questions that fashion addresses on an almost daily basis By interpreting fashion within a psychoanalytic frame Bancroft illustrates how fashion articulates some of the essential and sometimes frightening truths about the body femininity and the self
