Fashion Of Architecture:

The Fashion of Architecture Bradley Quinn, 2003 Architecture is making its presence felt in cutting edge fashion The pliable metals membrane structures lightweight glasses and plastics used in building construction are creeping onto the catwalk As they do so their impact on recent textile developments has produced fabrics that enable clothing to act as individual climate controlled environments that can exchange information with embedded sensors resulting in wearable dwellings that act as both shelter and clothing At the same time architects are borrowing the techniques of pleating stapling cutting and draping from traditional tailoring to design buildings that are flexible interactive inflatable and even portable Although the relationship between architecture and fashion was recognized more than a century ago the connection between them has rarely been explored by historians designers or practicing architects The Fashion of Architecture is the first attempt to investigate the contemporary relationship between architecture and fashion in considerable depth by examining the ideas imagery techniques and materials used by visionaries such as Martin Margiela Issey Miyake Alexander McQueen Tadao Ando and Daniel Libeskind As mavericks ranging from Hussein Chalayan and Rei Kawakubo to Rem Koolhaas and Zaha Hadid describe architecture's role in the formation of fashion identities new readings of both areas emerge Probing and far reaching in its content The Fashion of Architecture is the most comprehensive study of this exciting area to date

Fashion in Architecture Zhenguo Yang, 2005 中国+建筑 Brooke Hodge, Patricia Mears, 2007 Ces derni res ann es les rapports entre l architecture et la mode sont devenus de plus en plus apparents Ce livre largement illustr examine les nombreux principes visuels et conceptuels qui unissent mode et architecture Staging Fashion Tiziana

Ferrero-Regis, Marissa Lindquist, 2020-12-10 The fashion show and its spaces are sites of otherness representing everything from rebellion and excess through to political and social activism This conceptual and stylistic variety is reflected in the spaces they occupy whether they are staged in an industrial warehouse on a city street or out in the open landscape Staging Fashion is the first collection of essays about the presentation and staging of fashion in runway shows in the period from the 1960s to the 2010s It offers a fresh perspective on the many collaborations between artists architects and interior designers to reinforce their interdisciplinary links Fashion architecture and interiors share many elements including design history material culture aesthetics and trends The research and ideas underpinning Staging Fashion address how fashion and the spatial fields have collaborated in the creation of the space of the fashion show The 15 essays are written by fashion interior architecture and design scholars focusing on the presentation of fashion within the runway space from avant garde practices and collaboration with artists to the most spectacular and commercial shows of recent years from Prada to Chanel The Fashion of Architecture, 2007 An investigation of skin and a range of textural elements wishes to seek a parallel study of the body and its relationship to applying architectural clothing The practice of reinterpreting textures sounds colors smells etc invites the potential for an event of amplified stories and memories Engaging the local contexts through the use of our senses

establishes the core of a considered architecture The experiences of passing through space considering the whole engagement of the parallels of architecture and fashion is established through the interpretation of the specific methodological principles and strategies which then begins to initiate an invigorating side effect to our senses It is through the formation deformation and reformation of an articulate body that architecture can redefine beauty and utility through space

Fashion Thinking Fiona Dieffenbacher, 2013-01-07 The thinking behind a fashion collection is what sets one designer apart from another Learning to push ideas forward to develop concepts and to challenge the status quo is what gives us some of fashion's greatest innovations Yet students often struggle to develop their own style and approach to design While the design process is fundamental to the way all fashion designers work there is no right or wrong method each emerging designer must find their own authentic process By following nine award winning student designers through their thought processes in response to a brief Fashion Thinking establishes key approaches to design and encourages this process of discovery Each student project represents a diverse range of strategies at each stage of the design cycle By following each throughout their various stages of development these examples offer a unique and inspiring insight into the thinking behind a final collection Supported by beautiful imagery and illuminating perspectives from professionals throughout the fashion industry Fashion Thinking is a book that no aspiring fashion designer should be without

Redressing Architecture Lena Mary Mathew, 2002 At this moment in the twentieth century the discussions about architecture and fashion have suddenly become in fashion To many the topic seems suddenly timely or trendy but unlike theories comparing the artificial construct of the surface of clothes and the surface of buildings writings about the fashionable in architecture and the architectonics of clothing and styles of architecture my inclusion of these two seemingly disparate topics will try to begin beyond the obvious parallels into ideas of construction production and consumption Where as fashion has always been criticized by those with little to do as an artificial and superficial construct of vanity architecture has had some measure of respect both as a pursuit of beauty and an expression of our culture But while in the process of researching of the topics the similarities and overlaps between the two began to resonate more and more loudly Many obvious parallels exist metaphor of skin surface issues of identity time methods of construction production It however begins with their similarities as industries both are situated in between economic and symbolic artistic fields they have similar conditions of production team work use of model etc and similar conditions of consumption in which the distinctiveness of the original product is wasted away through diffusion But to the untrained eye namely mine the fashion industry appears more resilient and more resistant to the economic forces whose mechanisms conspire to control it Or perhaps fashion seems more capable of using the mechanisms of capitalism production marketing and distribution for its growth and evolution My interest therefore was partly a desire to establish a new paradigm with which to evaluate the industry of architecture In fashion in the condition of between perhaps architecture can find new strategies to resist the crises in new methods of construction production distribution and advertisement ReDressing Architecture the Architecture of a Fashion WORK shop will somehow refer to the conditions of betweenness In between the production and the commodification of fashion and architecture in between the concrete presence of the body and its more elusive containers clothing skin building surface in between the industrial and technological era in between the individual and his her relationship to a building and a building s relationship to the city By using the methodologies of fashion and architecture as a vehicle I propose a new paradigm with which to evaluate the industry of architecture and fashion through the condition of between perhaps architecture can find new strategies in methods of construction production and commodification Fashion + Architecture, 2001-03-12

Architecture has become a powerful tool in the fashion business Perfectly poised and detailed shopping environments help to launch and build the corporate identities of the most conspicuous and prevalent fashion houses worldwide As clothes designers diverify into all sorts of product ranges from homeware to sports gear and expand in the the virtual world of e commerce the architectural image of built shops is becoming all the more apparent and all pervasive Featuring interviews with high profile architects Rem Koolhaas Jan Kaplicky of Future Systems and David Chipperfield and covering among others Comme des Garcons Dolce Gabbana Issey Miyake Prada and Yves St Laurent stores this issue takes a close look at the relationship between fashion and architecture It examines issues such as what role architecture plays in the formulation of fashion houses identities whether the line between fashion and architecture has become blurred and if virtual shopping environments are intensifying the need to experience architectural space in the high street Probing and far reaching in its editorial content Fashion and Architecture is the most comprehensive and high quality visual record of current fashion retail

Architecture + Fashion Emily Sharon Fuller, 2007 The purpose of this architectural endeavor was to explore the two worlds of fashion and architecture together in one high end retail fashion house I wanted my thesis to be something that I was very passionate about I also wanted my architecture to excite me so that I could work on it for a whole year and still feel the same passion at the end as I did going into the project I decided to combine two things that I care deeply about architecture and fashion There are many famous architects that have designed high end retail but I wanted to go beyond that I wanted to design a fashion house that embodied the whole fashion experience from the first designs of the fashion designer the living quarters for the main designer to the manufacturing then to the runway and the last step to be marketed and displayed to the public in the showroom retail store The architecture focuses on the experience of the customer as they move through the building and the views that they will see and the people that will be viewing them The main focus of my building the runways engage the street and the customers in the building so everyone feels like a model and a part of the fashion world experience
